Crucifie: Let Dorrs delight to immer'd themselves in dung, whilst Eagles scorn so poor a Game as Flies. Sir, you have Art and Candour; let the one judge, let the other excuse,

Your most affectionate

Friend,

FRA. QUARLES.

TO THE READER.

AN Embleme is but a silent Parable. Let not the tender eye check, to see the allusion to our blessed Saviour figured in these Types. In Holy Scripture he is sometimes called a Sower; sometimes a Fisher; sometimes a Physician: And why not presented so well to the eye as to the ear? Before the knowledge of Letters God was known by Hieroglyphicks. And indeed what are the Heavens, the Earth, nay, every Creature, but Hieroglyphicks and Emblemes of his Glory? I have no more to say, I wish thee as much pleasure in the Reading, as I had in writing. Farewel READER.

B*Y Fathers back'd, by Holy Writ led on,
Thou shew'st a way to Heav'n by Helicon:
The Muses Font is consecrate by Thee,
And Poesie, baptiz'd Divinity:
Blest Soul that here embark'st: Thou sail'st apace
'Tis hard to say, mov'd more by Wit or Grace,
Each Muse so plies her Oar: But O, the Sail
Is fill'd from Heaven with a Diviner Gale:
When Poets prove Divines, why should not I
Approve in Verse this divine Poetry?
Let this suffice to licence thee the Press:
I must no more; nor could the Truth say less.*

THE FIRST BOOK.

The INVOCATION.

Rowze thee, my Soul; and drein thee from the dregs
Of vulgar thoughts: Scrue up the hightned pegs
Of thy sublime Theorboe four notes higher,
And higher yet, that so, the shril-mouth'd Quire
Of swift-wing'd Seraphims may come and joyn,
And make thy Consort more than half divine.
Invoke no Muse; Let Heav'n be thine Apollo;
And let his sacred Influences hallow
Thy high-bred strains: Let his full beams inspire
Thy ravish'd brains with more heroick fire:
Snatch thee a Quil from the spread Eagles wing,
And, like the morning Lark, mount up and sing:
Cast off these dangling plummets, that so clog
Thy lab'ring heart, which gropes in this dark fog
Of dungeon earth; let flesh and blood forbear
To stop thy flight, till this base world appear
A thin blew Landskip: Let thy pinions soar
So high a pitch, that men may seem no more
Than Pismires, crawling on this Mole-hill earth,
Thy ear untroubled with their Frantick mirth;
Let not the frailty of thy flesh disturb
Thy new-concluded peace; Let Reason curb
Thy hot mouth'd Passion; and let heav'n's fire season
The fresh conceits of thy corrected Reason.
Disdain to warm thee at luffs smoky fires,
Scorn, Scorn to feed on thy old bloat desires:
Come, come, my Soul, hoise up thy higher sails,
The wind blows fair; Shall we still creep like Snails,

That

That glide their ways with their own Native flimes;
No we must fly like Eagles, and our Rhimes
Must mount to Heav'n, and reach th' Olympick Ear;
Our Heav'n-blown fire must seek no other Sphear.

Thou great Theanthropos, that giv'st and ground'st
Thy gifts in dust, and from our dunghil crown'st
Reflecting honour, taking by retail,
What thou hast giv'n in gross, from lapsed frail,
And sinful man : That drink'st full draughts, wherein
Thy Childrens leprous fingers, scurf'd with sin,
Have padled ; Cleanse, O cleanse my crafty Soul
From secret crimes, and let my thoughts controul
My thoughts : O, teach me stoutly to deny
My self, that I may be no longer I :
Enrich my Fancy, clarifie my thoughts,
Refine my dross ; O, wink at human faults ;
And through the slender Conduet of my Quill
Convey thy Currant, whose clear streams may fill
The hearts of men with love, their tongues with praise :
Crown me with Glory, take who list the Bayes,

J A M. I. 14.

Every man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own lust and enticed.

Serpent.Eve.

Serp. Not eat? Not taste? Not touch? Not cast an eye
Upon the fruit of this fair Tree? And why?
Why eat'st thou not what Heav'n ordain'd for food?
Or can'st thou think that bad which Heav'n call'd Good?
Why was it made if not to be enjoy'd?
Neglect of favours makes a favour void:
Blessings unus'd, pervert into a Wast,
As well as Surfeits; Women, Do but tast:
See how the laden boughs make silent suit
To be enjoy'd; Look how their bending fruit
Meet thee half-way: Observe but how they crouch
To kiss thy hand; Coy woman, Do but touch:
Mark what a pure vermilion blush has dy'd
Their swelling cheeks, and how for shame they hide
Their pallie heads to see themselves stand by Neglected: Woman, Do but cast an eye.
What bounteous Heav'n ordain'd for use, refuse not,
Come, pull and eat: Y' abuse the thing ye use not.

Eve. Wisest of Beasts, our great Creator did
Reserve this Tree, and this alone forbid;
The rest are freely ours, which doubtless are
As pleasing to the tast; to th' eye as fair;
But touching this his strict commands are such,
'Tis death to tast, no less than death to touch.

Serp. Pish; Death's a fable: Did not Heav'n inspire
Your equal Elements with living Fire:

Blown

Blown from the spring of life? Is not that breath
 Immortal? Come; ye are as free from death
 As he that made ye. Can the flames expire
 Which he has kindled? Can ye quench his fire?
 Did not the great Creatours voice proclaim
 What ere he made (from the blew spangled frame
 To the poor leaf that trembles) very good?
 Bleft he not both the feeder and the Food?
 Tell, tell me then, what danger can accrue
 From such bleft Food, to such half gods as you?
 Curb needless fears, and let no fond conceit
 Abuse your freedom; Woman take and eat.

Eve. 'Tis true, we are immortal; death is yet
 Unborn, and till Rebellion make it debt,
 Undue; I know the fruit is good, until Presumptuous disobedience make it ill.
 The lips that open to this Fruit's a Portal
 To let in death and make immortal mortal.

Serp. You cannot die; come woman, Taste, and fear not:

Eve. Shall Eve transgress? I dare not, O I dare not.

Serp. Afraid? Why draw'st thou back thy tim'rous arm?
 Harm only falls on such as fear a harm.

Heav'n knows and fears the virtue of this Tree:
 'Twill make ye perfect Gods as well as He.
 Stretch forth thy hand, and let thy fondness never
 Fear death: Do, pull, and eat, and live for ever.

Eve. 'Tis but an Apple; and it is as good
 To do, as to desire. Fruit's made for food:
 I'll pull, and taste, and tempt my Adam too
 To know the secrets of this Dainty. Serp. Do.

S. CHRYS. sup. Matth.

He forced him not : He touch'd him not : Only said, Cast thy self down ; that we may know, that whosoever obeyeth the Devil casteth himself down : For the Devil may suggest, compel he cannot.

S. BERN. in Ser.

It is the Devils part to suggest : Ours, not to consent : As oft as we resist him, so often we overcome him : as often as we overcome him, so often we bring joy to the Angels, and glory to God, who proposeth us, that we may contend, and assist us, that we may conquer.

EPIG. I.

Unluckly Parliament ! Wherein at last,
Both Houses are agreed, and firmly past
An act of death confirm'd by higher Powers ;
O had it had but such success as Ours !

JAMES I. 15.

Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin ; and sin when it is finished bringeth forth death.

Lament, lament ; Look, look, what thou hast done ?
 Lament the world's, Lament thy own estate ;
 Look, look, by doing how thou art undone ;
 Lament thy fall, lament thy change of State :
 Thy faith is broken, and thy freedom gone,
 See, see too soon, what thou lament'st too late.
 O thou that wert so many men, nay, all
 Abridg'd in one, how has thy desp'rate fall
 Destroy'd thy unborn seed, destroy'd thy self withal.

Uxorious Adam, whom thy Maker made
 Equal to Angels that excel in pow'r,
 What hast thou done ? O why hast thou obey'd
 Thy own destruction ? Like a new-cropt flower
 How does the glory of thy beauty fade !
 How are thy fortunes blasted in an hour !
 How art thou cow'd that hast the pow'r to quell
 The spite of new fal'n Angels, baffle Hell,
 And vie with those that stood, and vanquish those that fell.

See how the world (whose chaste and pregnant womb
 Of late conceiv'd, and brought forth nothing ill)

Is now degenerated, and become

A base Adulteress, whose false births do fill
The earth with Monsters, Monsters that do roome
And rage about, and make a trade to kill :

Now Glutt'ny paunches ; Lust begins to spawn ;
Wrath takes revenge ; and Avarice a pawn ,
Pale Envy pines, Pride swells, and Sloth begins to yawn.

The Air that wisper'd, now begins to rore ;

And blustering Boreas blows the boyling Tide ;
The white mouth'd Water now usurps the shore,
And scorns the pow'r of her tridental guide ;
The fire now burns, that did but warm before,
And Rules her ruler with resistless Pride :

Fire, Water, Earth, and Air, that first were made
To be subdu'd see how they now invade ; (obey'd.
They rule whom once they serv'd, command where once

Behold ; that nakedness, that late bewray'd

Thy glory, now's become thy shame, thy wonder ;

Behold ; those trees whose various fruits were made

For food, now turn'd a shade to shrowd thee under,

Behold ; that voice (which thou hast disobey'd)

That late was musick, now affrights like thunder :

Poor man ! Are not thy joynts grown sore with sha-

To view th'effect of thy bold undertaking, (king

That in one hour did't marr what heav'n six days was (making ?

S. AUGUST. lib. 1. de lib. arbit.

It is a most just punishment, that man should lose that freedom, which man could not use, yet had power to keep, if he would; and that he who had knowledge to do, what was right, and did not, should be deprived of the knowledge of what was right: & that he who would not do righteously, when he had the power, should lose the power to do it, when he had the Will.

HUGO de anima.

They are justly punished that abuse lawful things, but they are most justly punished, that use unlawful things: Thus Lucifer fell from Heaven: Thus Adam lost his Paradise.

Upon the earth, how thick they spring! how fast!

Prepost'rous man first sow'd, and then he plough'd.*

A Las fond Child;
How are thy thoughts beguil'd
To hope for honey from a nest of wasps?
Thou may'st as well
Go seek for ease in Hell,
Or sprightly Nectar from the mouths of asps.

The world's a hive,
From whence thou can'st derive
No good, but what thy souls vexation brings:
Put case thou meet
Some petti-petti-sweet,
Each drop is guarded with a thousand stings.

Why dost thou make
These murm'ring troops forsake
The safe protection of their waxen homes?
Their hive contains
No sweet that's worth thy pains;
There's nothing here, alas, but empty combs.

For trash and toys,
And grief ingen'dring joyes,

What

What torment seems too sharp for flesh and blood !

What bitter pills,

Compos'd of real ills,

Men swallows down to purchase one false good !

The dainties here,

Are least what they appear ;

Though sweet in hopes, yet in fruition sowre :

The fruit that's yellow,

Is found not alway mellow ;

The fairest Tulips not the sweetest flower.

Fond youth give ore,

And vex thy soul no more

In seeking what were better far unfound ;

Alas ! Thy gains

Are only present pains

To gather Scorpions for a future wound.

What's earth ? Or in it,

That longer then a minute,

Can lend a free delight that can endure ?

O who would droyl,

Or delve in such a soyl,

Where gain's uncertain and the pains is sure :

S. AUGUST.

Sweetness in temporal matters is deceitful : It is a labour and a perpetual fear ; it is a dangerous pleasure, whose beginning is without providence, and whose end is not without repentance.

HUGO.

Luxury is an enticing pleasure, a bastard mirth, which hath honey in her mouth, gall in her heart, and a sting in her tail.

EPIG. 3.

What, Cupid, are thy shafts already made ?
 And seeking honey, to set up thy trade
 True Embleme of thy sweets ! Thy Bees do bring Honey in their mouths, but in their tails a sting.

PSALM 62. 9.

To be laid in the ballance, it is altogether lighter than vanity.

Put in another weight : 'Tis yet too light :
 And yet, Fond Cupid, put another in ;
 And yet another : Still there's under weight :
 Put in another hundred : Put again ;
 Add world to world ; then heap a thousand more
 To that, then to renew thy wasted store,
 Take up more worlds on trust, to draw thy ballance lower.

Put in the flesh with all her loads of pleasure ;
 Put in great Mammon's endless inventory ;
 Put in the ponderous acts of Mighty Cæsar :
 Put in the greater weight of Swedens glory ;
 Add Scipio's gauntlet ; put in Plato's gown :
 Put Circes charms ; put in the triple crown.
 Thy ballance will not draw ; thy ballance will not down.

Lord what a world is this, which day and night,
 Men seek with so much toil, with so much trouble ?
 Which weigh'd in equal scales is found so light,
 So poorly overballanc'd with a bubble ?
 Good God ! that frantick mortals should destroy
 Their higher hopes, and place their idle joy
 Upon such airy trash, upon so light a toy !

Thou holy Impostor, how hast thou befool'd
 The tribe of Man with counterfeit desire !

How

How has the breath of thy false bellows cool'd
 Heav'n's free born flames, and kindled bastard fire!
 How hast thou vented dross instead of measure,
 And cheated men with thy false weights and measure;
 Proclaiming bad for good; & gilding death with pleasure!

The world's a crafty Strumpet most affecting,
 And closely following those that most reject her;
 But seeming careless, nicely disrespecting
 And coyly flying those that most affect her:
 If thou be free, she's strange, if strange she's free;
 Flee, and she follows; follow and she'll flee:
 Then she ther's none more coy, ther's none more fond then

O what a Crocodilian world is this,
 Compos'd of treacheries, and insnaring wiles!
 She cloathes destruction in a formal kiss.
 And lodges death in her deceitful smiles;
 She hugs the soul she hates; and there does prove
 The veryest tyrant, where she vows to love,
 And is a Serpent most, when most she seems a Dove.

Thrice happy he, whose nobler thoughts despise
 To make an object of so easie gains;
 Thrice happy he who scorns so poor a price
 Should be the crown of his heroick pains:
 Thrice happy he, that ne're was born to try
 Her frowns or smiles; or being born, did lie
 In his sad nurses arms an hour, or two, and die.

S. AUGUST.

S. AUGUST. lib. Confess. 3

O you that dote upon this world, for what victory do ye fight? Your hopes can be crowned with no greater reward, than the world can give; and what is the world but a brittle thing full of dangers, wherein we travel from lesser to greater perils? O let all her vain light, momentary glory, perish with her self, and let us be conversant with more eternal things. Alas, this world is miserable; life is short, and death is sure.

EPIG. 4.

My soul, what's lighter, than a feather?
Than wind? The fire. And what, than fire? The mind.
What's lighter, than the mind? A thought. Then thought?
This bubble world. What, than this bubble? Nought,

1 Cor. 7. 31.

The fashion of this World passeth away.

GONE are those golden days, wherein
Pale Conscience started not at ugly sin :
When good old Saturn's peaceful Throne
Was unsurped by his beardless Son :
When jealous Ops ne'r fear'd th' abuse
Of her chaste bed, or breach of nuptial Truce :
When just Astræa pois'd her Scales
In mortal hearts, whose absence earth bewails
When froth-born Venus and her brat,
With all that spurious brood Young Jove begat,
In horrid shapes were yet unknown ;
Those Halcyon days, that golden age is gone.
There was no Client then to wait
The leisure of this long tayl'd Advocate ;
The Talion Law was in request,
And Chanc'ry Courts were kept in ev'ry brest :
Abused Statutes had no Tenters,
And men could deal secure without indentures :
There was no peeping hole to clear
The wittals eye from his incarnate fear ;
There were no lustful Cinders then
To broil the Carbonado'd hearts of men :
The rose cheeks did then proclaim
A shame of Guilt, but not a guilt of shame :
There was no whining soul to start
At Cupid's twang, or curse his flaming dart ;
The Boy had then but callow wings,
And fell Erynnis Scorpions had no stings :

The better-act'd world did move
Upon the fixed poles of Truth and Love.
Love effenc'd in the hearts of men!
Then Reason rul'd, there was no passion then;
Till Lust and rage began to enter,
Love the Circumference was, and Love the Center
Until the wanton days of Jove
The simple world was all compos'd of Love;
But Jove grew fleshly, false unjust;
Inferiour beauty fill'd his veins with lust:
And Cucquean Juno's fury hurld
Fierce balls of rape into th'incestuous world:
Astræa fled, and love return'd
From earth, earth boyld with lust, with rage it burn'd;
And ever since the world hath been Kept going with the scourge of Lust and Spleen.

S. AMBROS.

Lust is a sharp spur to vice, which always putteth the affections into a false gallop.

HUGO.

Lust is an immoderate wantonness of the flesh, a sweet poison, a cruel pestilence; a pernicious poison, which weakeneth the body of Man, and effeminateth the strength of an heroick mind.

S. AUGUST.

Envy is the hatred of anothers felicity: in respect of Superiours, because they are not equal to them; in respect of Inferiours, lest he should be equal to them; in respect of equals, because they are equal to them: Through envy proceeded the fall of the world, and death of Christ.

EPIG. 5.

What, Cupid, must the world be lash'd so soon?
But made at morning, and he whipt at noon?
'Tis like the wagg, that plays with Venus Doves,
The more 'tis lash'd, the more perverse it proves.

All is vanity and vexation of Spirit.

HOW is the anxious soul of man befool'd
 In his desire,
 That thinks an Heſtick feaver may be cool'd
 In flames of fire,
 Or hopes to rake full heaps of burniſh'd gold
 From naſty mire !
 A whining Lover may as well requeſt
 A ſcornful breſt
 To melt in gentle tears, as woo the world for reſt.

Let wit, and all her ſtudied plots effect
 The beſt they can ;

 What wit began,
 Let earth adviſe with both, and ſo projeſt

The Pleasure, Honour, Wealth of Sea and Land
 Bring but a trouble;
 The World it self, and all the Worlds command,
 Is but a bubble.
 The strong desires of mans insatiate breast
 May stand posselt;
 Of all that Earth can give; but Earth can give no rest.

The World's a seeming Par'dise, but her own
 And man's tormentor;
 Appearing fix'd, yet but a rolling stone
 Without a tenter;
 It is a vast Circumference, where none
 Can find a Center.
 Of more than Earth, can Earth make none posselt;
 And he that least
 Regards this restless World, shall in this World find rest.

True rest consists not in the oft revying
 Of worldly dross;
 Earth's miry purchase is not worth the buying;
 Her gain is loss;
 Her rest but giddy toil, if not relying
 Upon her cross,
 How worldlings drowl for trouble! That fond breast
 That is posselt'd
 Of Earth without a cross, has Earth without a rest.

C A S S. in Pl.

The Cross is the invincible sanctuary of the humble : The dejection of the proud, the victory of Christ, the destruction of the devil, the confirmation of the faithful, the death of the unbeliever, the life of the just.

D A M A S C E N.

The Cross of Christ is the key of Paradise ; the weak mans staff ; the Converts convoy ; the upright Mans perfection ; the soul and bodies health ; the prevention of all evil, and the procurer of all good.

Be sober, be vigilant, because your Adversary the Devil as a roaring Lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

I

Why dost thou suffer lustful sloth to creep,
Dull Cyprian Lad into thy wanton brows?
Is this a time to pay thine idle Vows
At Morpheus Shrine? Is this a time to sleep
Thy brains in wasteful slumbers? up and rouse
Thy leaden spirit: Is this a time to sleep?
Adjourn thy sanguine dreams, awake, arise,
Call in thy thoughts; and let them all advise,
Had'st thou, as many heads, as thou hast wounded eyes

Look, Look, what horrid furies do await
Thy flatt'ring slumbers! If thy drowzy head
But chance to nod, thou fall'st into a bed
Of sulph'rous flames, whose torments want a date.
Fond boy, be wise, let not thy thoughts be fed
With Phrygian wisdom; fools are wise too late:
Beware betimes, and let thy reason sever
Those gates which passion clos'd; wake now or never;
For if thou nod'st thou fall'st, and falling fall'st for ever.

Mark, how the ready hands of death prepare:
His bow is bent, and he hath notch'd his dart;
He aims, he levels at thy slumb'ring heart:

The wound is posting, O be wise, beware.

What? has the voice of danger lost the art

To raise the spirit of neglected care?

Well, sleep thy fill, and take thy soft repose.

But know withal, sweet tastes have sower closes;

And he repents in thorns, that sleeps in beds of roses.

Yet sluggard, wake, and gull thy Soul no more

With Earth's false pleasure, and the worlds delight,

Whose fruit is fair, and pleasing to the sight,

But sower in taste, false as the putrid core:

Thy flaring glass is gems at her half light,

She makes thee seeming rich, but truly poor:

She boasts a kernel, and bestows a shell;

Performs an inch of her fair promis'd ell:

Her words protest a Heaven; her works produce an hell.

O thou the fountain of whose better part,

Is earth'd and gravell'd up with vain desire:

That daily wallow'st in the fleshly mire

And base pollution of a lustful heart,

That feel'st no passion, but in wanton fire,

And own'st no torment but in Cupid's dart;

Behold thy type: Thou sitt'st upon this ball

Of earth, secure, while death that flings at all,

Stands arm'd to strike thee down, where flames attend thy (fall.

S. BERN.

Security is no where ; neither in Heaven, nor in Paradise, much less in the World : In Heaven the Angels fell from the Divine Presence ; in Paradise, Adam fell from his place of pleasure ; in the World, Judas fell from the School of our Saviour.

HUGO.

I am secure, I drink secure, I sleep secure, even as though I had past the day of death, avoided the day of judgment, and escaped the torments of Hell-fire : I play and laugh, as though I were already triumphing in the Kingdom of Heaven.

EPIG. 7.

LUKE 6. 25.

Woe be to you that laugh now, for ye shall mourn and weep.

THe World's a popular disease, that reigns
Within the froward heart and frantick brains
Of poor distemper'd mortals, oft arising
From ill digestion, through th' unequal poisoning
Of ill-weigh'd Elements, whose light directs
Malignant humours to malign effects:
One raves and labours with a boyling liver;
Rends hair by handfuls, cursing Cupid's quiver:
Another with a bloody flux of oaths
Vows deep revenge: one dotes: the other loaths:
One frisks and fings, and vies a flagon more
To drench dry cares, and make the Welkin rore:
Another droops: the Sun-shine makes him sad;
Heav'n cannot please: One's mop'd; the t'other's mad:
One hugs his gold; another lets it fly:
He knowing not for whom; nor t'other why.
One spends his day in plots, his night in play;
Another sleeps and slugs both night and day:
One laughs at this thing; t'other cries for that:
But neither one nor t'other knows for what.
Wonder of wonders! What we ought t'evite
As our disease, we hug as our delight:
'Tis held a symptome of approaching danger,
When disacquainted Sense becomes a Stranger,
And takes no knowledge of an old disease;
But when a noisom grief begins to please

The unresisting sense, it is a fear
That death has parli'd, and compounded there :
As when the dreadful Thund'ers awful hand
Pours forth a Vial on th'infested land,
At first th'affrighted Mortals quake and fear ;
And every noise is thought the Thunderer :
But when the frequent soul-departing Bell
Has pav'd their ears with her familiar knell,
It is reputed but a nine days wonder,
They neither fear the Thund'rer nor his Thunder.
So when the world (a worse disease) began
To smart for sin, poor new created Man
Could seek for shelter, and his gen'rous Son
Knew by his wages, what his hands had done :
But bold-fac'd Mortals in our blushless times
Can sing and smile, and make a sport of crimes,
Transgress of custom, and rebel in ease ;
We false joy'd fools can triumph in disease,
And (as the careless Pilgrim, being bit
By the Tarantula, begins a fit
Of life concluding laughter) waste our breath
In lavish pleasure, till we laugh to death.

HUGO de anima.

What profit is there in vain-glory, momentany mirth, the worlds power, the fleshes pleasure, full riches, noble descent, and great desires? Where is their laughter? where is their mirth! Where their insolence? their arrogance? From how much joy to how much sadness! After how much mirth, how much misery! From how great glory are they fallen, to how great torments! What hath fallen to them, may befall thee, because thou art a man: Thou art of earth; thou livest of earth; thou shalt return to earth. Death expecteth thee every where: Be wise therefore, and expect death every where.

And you more brain-sick Lovers, that can prize
A wanton smile before eternal Joys;
That know no heav'n, but in your Mistress eyes;
That feel no pleasure, but what sense enjoys:
That can like crown-distemper'd fools despise
True riches, and like babies whine for toyes:
Think ye the Pageants of your hopes are able
To stand secure on earth, when earth it self's unstable?

Come dunghill Worldlings, you that root like swine,
And cast up golden trenches, where ye come:
Whose only pleasure is to undermine,
And view the secrets of your mothers womb:
Come bring your Saint pouch'd in his Leather shrine,
And summon all your griping Angels home;
Behold your World, the bank of all your store
The World ye so admire, the World ye so adore.

A feeble world, whose hot-mouth'd pleasures tire
Before the race; before the start, retrait;
A faithless world, whose false delights expire
Before the term of half their promis'd date:
A fickle World, not worth the least desire,
Where ev'ry chance proclaims a change of State:
A feeble, faithless, fickle world, wherein
Each motion proves a vice; and ev'ry act a sin.

The beauty, that of late was in her flower,
Is now a ruin, not to raise a lust:
He that was lately drench'd in Dandies shower,
Is master now of neither good nor trust;
Whose honour late was mann'd with Princely power,
His glory now lies buried in the dust;
O who would trust this world, or prize what's in it,
That gives and takes, and chops and changes ev'ry minute!

Nor length of days, nor solid strength of brain,
Can find a place wherein to rest secure:
The World is various, and the Earth is vain
There's nothing certain here, there's nothing sure:
We trudge, we travel, but from pain to pain,
And what's our only grief's our only cure:
The world's a torment; he that would endeavour
To find the way to rest must seek the way to leave her.

JOHN 8. 44.

You are of your father the Devil, and the lusts of your father you will do.

Here's your right ground : wag gently o're this black :
'Tis a short cast ; y'are quickly at the jack,
Rub, rub an inch or two ; two crowns to one,
On this bowls side : Blow wind, 'tis fairly thrown :
The next bowl's worse that comes, come bolw away ;
Mammon, you know the ground untutor'd, play ;
Your last was gone, a yard of strength well spar'd,
Had touch'd the block ; your hand is still too hard,
Brave pastime, Readers, to consume that day,
Which without pastime flies too swift away !
See how they labour ; as if day and night
Were both too short to serve their loose delight ?
See how their curved bodies wreath, and skruce
Such antick shapes as Proteus never knew :
One rapps an oath, another deals a curse ;
He never better bowl'd ; this never worse :
One rubs his itchless elbow, shrugs and laughs,
The t'other bends his beetle brows, and chafes :
Sometimes they whoop, sometimes their Stygian cries
Send their black Santo's to the blushing skies :
Thus mingling honours in a mad confusion,
They make bad Promises, and worse conclusion :
But where's a Palm that Fortunes hand allows
To bless the victors honourable brows ?
Come, Reader, come ; I'll light thine eye the way
To view the prize, the while the Gamesters play :

Close by the jack, behold, gill fortune stands
To wave the game, see in her partial hands
The glorious garland's held in open show,
To cheer the Lads, and crown the conqu'rors brow.
The world's the jack ; the gamesters that contend,
Are Cupid, Mammon : that judicious Friend,
That gives the ground, is Satan : And the bowls
Are sinful Thoughts ; they Prize, a crown for Fools.
Who breaths that bowls not ? What bold tongue can say
Without a blush, he hath not bowl'd to day ?
It is the trade of man, and every sinner
Has plaid his rubbers : Every Soul's a winner.
The vulgar Proverb's croft, He hardly can
Be a good Bowler and an honest man.
Good God ! turn thou my Brazil thoughts anew ;
New sole my bowls, and make their bias true :
I'll cease to game, till fairer ground be given,
Nor wish to win, until the mark be Heaven.

World, according to the Prince of the air.*

I

O Whither will this mad brain world at last
Be driv'n ? Where will her restless wheels arrive ?
Why hurries on her ill-match'd pair so fast ?
O whether means her furious groom to drive ?
What will her rambling fits be never past ?
For ever ranging ? Never once retrace ?
Will Earth perpetual progress ne'r expire ?
Her Team continuing in their fresh career.
And yet they never rest, and yet they never tire.

Sol's hot mouth'd Steeds, whose nostrils vomit flame,
and brazen lungs belch forth quotidian fire,
Their twelve hours task perform'd grow stiff and lame,
And their immortal spirits faint and tire :
At th' azure mountains foot their labours claim
The privilege of rest, where they retire
To quench their burning fetlocks, and go sleep
Their flaming nostrils in the western deep,
And fresh their tired souls with strength restoring sleep.

But these prodigious hackneys, basely got
'Twixt men and devils, made for race or flight,
Can drag the idle world, expecting not
The bed of rest, but travel with delight ;
Who never weighing way nor weather, trot

Through dust and dirt, and droil both night and day ;
 Thus droil these fiends incarnate, whose free pains
 Are fed with dropfies and venereal blains.
 No need to use the whip ; but strength to rule the rains.

Poor captive world ! How has thy lightness given
 A just occasion to thy foes illusion ?
 O, how art thou betray'd thus fairly driven
 In seeming triumph to thy own confusion ?
 How is thy empty Universe bereaven
 Of all true joys, by one false joys delusion ?
 So I have seen an unblown virgin fed
 With sugar'd words so full, that she is led
 A fair attended Bride to a false Bankrupts bed.

Full gracious Lord ; Let not thine arm forsake
 The world impounded in her own devices :
 Think of that pleasure that thou once didst take
 Amongst the Lillies and sweet Beds of Spices.
 Hale strongly, thou whole hand has pow'r to slack
 The swift-foot fury of ten thousand vices :
 Let not thy dust devouring Dragon boast,
 His craft has won what Juda's Lion lost ;
 Remember what is crav'd ; recount the price it cost.

WHat never fill'd? Be thy lips skrew'd so fast (thee)
Toth' earths full breast? for shame, for shame unseize
Thou tak'st a surfet where thou should'st but tast,
And mak'st too much not half enough to please thee.
Ah, fool, forbear; thou swallowest at one breath
Both food and poison down; thou draw'st both milk and

The ub'rous breasts, when fairly drawn, repast
The thriving infant with her milkie fload,
But being overstrain'd, return at last
Unwholsom gulps compos'd of wind and blood.
A mod'rate use does both repast and please;
Who strains beyond a mean draws in and gulps disease.

But, O that mean; whose good the least abuse
Makes bad, is too too hard to be directed:
Can thorns bring grapes, or Crabs a pleasing juice?
There's nothing wholsom, where the whole's infected.
Unseize thy lips: Earth's milk's a rip'ned core,
That drops from her disease, that matters from her sore.

Thy skin's a bladder blown with watry tumors;
Thy flesh a trembling bog, a quagmire full of humours.

And thou whose thriveless hands, are ever straining
Earths fluent breasts into an empty sieve,
That always hast, yet always art complaining,
And whin'st for more then earth has power to give;
Whose treasure flows and flees away as fast;
That ever hast, and hast, yet hast not what thou hast:

Go choose a substance, Fool, that will remain
Within the limits of thy leaking measure;
Or else go seek an urn that will retain
The liquid body of thy slipp'ry treasure:
Alas, how poorly are thy labours crown'd?
Thy liquor's never sweet, nor yet thy vessel sound.

What less, than Fool, is man, to prog and plot.
And lavish out the cream of all his care,
To gain poor seeming goods, which being got,
Make firm possession but a thorow fare;
Or, if they stay, they furrow thoughts the deeper.
And being kept with care, they lose their careful keeper.

S. GREG. Hom. 3. second. parte Ezech.

If we give more to the flesh then we ought, we nourish an enemy; if we give not to her necessity what we ought, we destroy a Citizen: The flesh is to be satisfied so far as suffices to our good; whosoever alloweth so much to her as to make her proud, knoweth not how to be satisfied: To be satisfied is a great art; lest by the satiety of the flesh we break forth into the iniquity of her folly.

JOHN 3. 19.

Men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil.

Lord, when we leave the world and come to Thee,
How dull, how slug are we !
How backward ! How preposterous is the motion
Of our ungain devotion !
Our thoughts are Millstones, and our souls are lead,
And our desires are dead ;
Our vows are fairly promis'd, faintly paid ;
Or broken or not made :
Our better work (if any good) attends
Upon our private ends
In whose performance one poor worldly scoff
Foils us or beats us off.
If thy sharp scourge find out some secret fault,
We grumble or revolt,
And if thy gentle hand forbear, we stray,
Or idly lose the way.
Is the road fair ? we loyter : clogg'd with mire ?
We stick or else retire :
A lamb appears a Lion ; and we fear,
Each bush we see's a bear.
When out dull souls direct our thoughts to thee,
The soft-pac'd snail is not so slow as we :
But at earth we dart our wing'd desire,
We burn, we burn like fire.
Like as the am'rous needle joys to bend
To her magnetick friend :

Or as the greedy Lovers eye-balls fly
At his fair Mistriss eye :
So, so we cling to earth ; we fly and puff,
Yet flie not fast enough.
If pleasure becken with her balmy hand,
Her beck's a strong command :
If honour call us with a courtly breath :
An hour's delay is death :
If profits golden finger'd charms enveigles,
We clip more swift than Eagles :
Let Auster weep, or blustering Boreas rore
Till eyes or lungs be sore :
Let Neptune swell until his dropsy sides
Burst into broken tides :
Nor threatning Rocks, nor Winds, nor Waves, nor Fire,
Can crub our fierce desire ;
Nor Fire, nor Rocks, can stop your furious minds,
Nor Waves, nor Winds
How fast and fearless do our footsteps flee !
The light-foot Roe-buck's not so sweet, as we.

sleep of death.*

Will't ne'r be morning? Will that promis'd light
Ne'r break, and clear those clouds of night?
Sweet Phosper, bring the day,
whose conqu'ring ray
May chase these fogs; Sweet Phosper, bring the day.

How long! How long shall these benighted eyes
Languish in shades, like feeble flies
Expecting Spring? How long shall darkness soyl
The face of earth, and thus beguile
Our souls of sprightful action? When, when will day
Begin to dawn, whose new born ray
May gild the weather-cocks of our devotion,
And give our unsoul'd souls new motion?
Sweet Phosper, bring the day,
Thy light will fray
These horrid mists? Sweet Phosper bring the day.

Let those have night that lightly love t'immure
Their cloyster'd crimes, and sin secure;
Let those have night that blush to let men know
The baseness they ne'r blush to do;
Let those have night, that love to have a nap
And loß in Ignorances lap;
Let those whose eyes, like Owls, abhor the light,
Let those have night that love the night:

Sweet Phosper bring the day ;
How sad delay

Afflicts dull hopes ? Sweet Phosper, bring the day.

Alas ! my light in vain expecting eyes

Can find no object but what rise

From this poor mortal blaze, a dying spark

Of Vulcan's forge, whose flames are dark,

A dangerous, a dull blew burning light,

As melancholy as the night :

Here's all the Suns that glister in the Sphere

Of earth : Ah me ! What comfort's here ?

Sweet Phosper bring the day ;

Haste, haste away

Heav'n's loyt'ring lamp ; Sweet Phosper, bring the day.

Blow, Ignorance : O thou, whose idle knee

Rocks earth into a Lethargy,

And with thy sooty fingers hast bedight

The worlds fair cheeks, blow, blow thy spight ;

Since thou hast puffed our greater Taper ; do

Puff on, and out the lesser too :

If e're that breath-exiled flame return,

O How our wid'ned arms can over-stretch
Their own dimensions ! How our hands can reach
Beyond their distance ! How our yielding breast
Can shrink to be more full, and full possess
Of this inferiour Orb ? How earth refin'd
Can cling to sordid earth ! How kind to kind !
We gape, we grasp, we gripe, and store to store ;
Enough requires too much ; too much craves more.
We charge our souls so sore beyond their stat,
That we recoil or burst : the busie Mint
Of our laborious thoughts is ever going,
And coyning new desires ; desires not knowing
Where next to pitch, but like the boundless Ocean
Gain, and gain ground, and grow more strong by motion.

First tips her horned brows with easie light,
Whose curious train of spangled Nymphs attire
Her next nights glory with increasing fire ;
Each Ev'ning adds more lustre, and adorns
The growing beauty of her grasping horns :
She sucks and draws her brother's golden store,
Until her glutt'd orb can suck no more,
Ev'n to the Vulture of insatiate minds
Still wants, and wanting seeks, and seeking finds
New fewel to increase her rav'nous fire,
The grave is sooner cloy'd than mens desire :
We cross the Seas, and midst her waves we burn,
Transporting lives, perchance that n'r return ;

We sack, we ranſack t the utmoſt ſands
Of native kingdoms, and of forreign lands;
We travel Sea and Soil, we pry, we proul,
We progreſs, and we prog from pole to pole;
We ſpend our mid-day ſweat, our midnight oyl,
We tire the night in thought, the day in toil:
We make Art ſervile, and the Trade gentile,
(Yet both corrupted with ingenious guile)
To compaſs earth, and with her empty ſtore
To fill our arms, and graſp one handful more;
Thus ſeeking reſt, our labours never ceaſe,
But as our years, our hot deſires increaſe:
Thus we, poor little Worlds! with blood and ſweat
In vain attempt to comprehend the great;

JOB 18. 8:

He is cast into a net by his own feet, and walketh upon a snare.

I

WHat? nets and quiver too? What need there all
These lie devices to betray poor men?
Die they not fast enough when thousands fall
Before thy dart? What need these engines then?
Attend they not, and answer to thy call,
Like nightly coveys where thou liest and when?
What needs a stratagem where strength can sway?
Or what needs strength compel, where none gain say?
Or what needs stratagem or strength, where hearts obey?

Husband thy flights: It is but vain to waste
Honey on those that will be catch'd with gall;
Thou canst not, ah! the canst not bid so fast
As men obey: Thou art more slow to call,
Then they to come; thou canst not make such hast;
To strike, as they being struck make hast to fall.
Go save thy nets for that rebellious heart
That scorns thy pow'r, and has obtained the art
To avoid thy flying shaft, to quench thy fiery dart.

Lost mortal, how is thy distraction sure,
Between two bawds, and both without remorse!

The on's a Line, the t'other is a Lure ;
 This to intice thy soul ; that to enforce :
 Way-laid by both, how canst thou stand secure ?
 That draws ; this wooes thee to th' eternal curse.
 O charming Tyrant, how hast thou befool'd
 And slav'd poor man, that would not if he could Avoid thy line, thy lure ; nay could not if he would !

Alas, thy sweet perfidious voice betrays
 His wanton ears with thy Syrenian baits ;
 Thou wrapest his eyes in mists, then boldy lays
 Thy Lethal gins before their chrystal gates ;
 Thou lok'st up ev'ry sense with thy false keys,
 All willing pris'ners to thy close deceits :
 His ear most nimble, where it deaf should be,
 His eye most blind, where most it ought to see, (free.
 And when his heart's most bound, then thinks himself most

Thou grand Impositor, how hast thou obtain'd
 The wardship of the world ? Are all men turn'd
 Idiots and Lunaticks ? Are all retain'd
 Beneath thy servile bands ; is none return'd
 To his forgotten self ? Has none regain'd
 His senses ? Are their senses all adjourn'd ?
 What none dismiss thy Court ? Will no plump fee
 Bribe thy false fists to make a glad decree,
 T' unfool whom thou hast fool'd, & set thy pris'ners free?

S. BERN. in Ser.

In this world is much treachery, little truth, here all things are traps; here every thing is beset with snares; here souls are endangered, bodies are afflicted; here all things are vanity and vexation of spirit.

HOSEA 13. 3.

They shall be as the chaff that is driven with a whirlwind out of the floor, and as the smoke out of the Chimney.

FLint-hearted Stoicks, you, whose marble eyes
Contemn a wrinkle, and whose souls despise
To follow natures too affected fashion,
Or travel in the Regent walk of Passion;
Whose rigid hearts disdain to shrink at fears;
Or play at fast and loose, with smiles and tears;
Come burst your spleens with laughter to behold
A new found vanity, which days of old
Ne'r knew: a vanity, that has beset
The world, and made more slaves than Mahomet:
That has condemn'd us to the servile yoke
Of slavery, and made us slaves to smoke.
But stay; why tax I thus our modern times,
For new-born follies, and for new-born crimes?
Are we sole guilty, and the first age free?
No, they were smok'd and slav'd as well as we: (sure
What's sweet-lipt Honours blast, but smoke? What's trea-
But very smoke? And what more smoke than pleasure?
Alas! they're all but shadows, fumes, and blasts,
That vanishes, this fades, the other wastes.
The restless Merchant, he that loves to steep
His brains in wealth, and lays his soul to sleep
In bags of Bullion, sees th' immortal crown,
And fain would mount, but Ingots keep him down:
He brags to day, perchance, and begs to morrow:
He lent but now, wants credit now to borrow;

Blow winds, the treasure's gone, the merchant's broke ;
A slave to silver's but a slave to smoke.
Behold the Glory-vying child of fame,
That from deep wounds suck suck an honour'd name,
That thinks no purchase worth the stile of good,
But what is sold for sweat, and seal'd with blood ;
That for a point, a blast of empty breath,
Undaunted gazes in the face of death ;
Whose dear bought bubble, fill'd with vain renown,
Breaks with a phillop, or a Gen'ral's frown :
His stroke-got Honour, staggers with a stroke ;
A slave to honour, is a slave to smoke.
And that fond fool, which wastes his idle days
In loose delights, and sports about the blaze
Of Cupid's Candle ; he that daily spies
Twin babies in his Mistress Geminies,
Whereto his sad devotion does impart
The sweet burnt-offering of a bleeding heart :
See, how his wings are findg'd in Cyprian fire,
Whose flames consume with youth, in age expire :
The World's a bubble, all the pleasures in it,
Like morning vapours vanish in a minute :
The vapours vanish, and the bubble's broke ;
A slave to pleasure, is a slave to smoke.
Now, Stoick, cease thy laughter, and repast
Thy pickled cheeks with tears, and weep as fast,

Believe her not, her glasse diffuses
False portraitures: thou canst espie
No true reflection: She abuses
Her mis-inform'd beholders eye;
Her Chrystal's falsely steel'd: it scatters
Deceitful beams. Believe her not, she flatters.

His flaring mirour represents
No right proportion, view or feature:
Her very looks are complements;
They make thee fairer, goodlier, greater:
The skilful gloss of her reflection
Paints the Context of thy coarse complexion.

Were thy dimension but a stride,
Nay, wert thou statur'd but a span,
Such as the long-bill'd troops des'd,

Of all deformities that are
 Within the volume of thy face,

 Were thy consum'd estate as poor
 As Lazarus or afflicted Job's :
 Shee'l change thy wants to seeming store,
 And turn thy rags to purple robes ;
 Shee'l make thy hide-bound flank appear
 As plump as theirs that feast it all the year.

 Look off, let not thy Opticks be
 Abus'd : thou seest not what thou should'st :
 Thy self's the object thou should'st see,
 But 'tis thy shadow thou behold'st :
 And shadows thrive the more in stature,
 The nearer we approach the light of nature.

 Where Heav'n's bright beams look more direct,
 The shadow shrinks as they grow stronger :
 But when they glance their fair aspect,
 The bold-fac'd shade grows larger, longer :
 And when their lamp begins to fall,
 Th'increasing shadows lengthen most of all.

 The soul that seeks the noon of grace,
 Shrinks in, but swells if grace retreat ;
 As heav'n lifts up, or veils his face,
 Our self-esteems grow less or great.
 The least is greatest, and who shall Appear the greatest, are the least of all.

HUGO lib. de anima.

In vain he lifteth up the eye of his heart to behold his God, who is not first rightly advised to behold himself: First, thou must see the visible things of thy self, before thou canst be prepared to know the invisible things of God; for if thou canst not apprehend the things within thee, thou canst not comprehend the things above thee: the best looking glass, wherein to see thy God, is perfectly to see thy self.

DEUTERONOMY 30. 19.

I have set before thee life and death, blessing and cursing, therefore choose life, that thou and thy seed may live.

I

THe world's a Floor, whose swelling heaps retain
The mingled wages of the Ploughmans toyl;
The world's a heap, whose yet unwindowed grain
Is lodg'd with chaff and buried in her soyl;
All things are mixt, the useful with the vain;
The good with bad, the noble with the vile;
The world's an Ark, wherein things pure and gross
Present their loss-ful gain, and gainful loss,
Where ev'ry dram of gold contains a pound of dross.

This furnish'd Ark presents the greedy view
With all that earth can give, or Heav'n can add;
Here lasting joyes; here pleasures hourly new,
And hourly fading, may be wish'd and had:
All points of Honour, counterfeit and true,
Salute thy soul, and wealth both good and bad:
Here maist thou open wide the two leav'd door
Of all thy wishes, to receive that store
Which being empty most, does overflow the more.

Come then my soul, approach this royal Burse,
 And see what wares our great Exchange retains ;
 Come, come ; here's that shall make a firm divorce
 Betwixt thy wants and thee, if want complains ;
 No need to sit in council with thy purse,
 Here's nothing good shall cost more price than pains :
 But O my soul take heed, if thou rely Upon thy faithless Opticks, thou wilt buy
 Too blind a bargain : Know, fools only trade by th' eye.

The worldly wisdom of the foolish man
 Is like a sieve, that does alone retain
 The grosser substance of the worthless brain ;
 But thou, my soul, let thy brave thoughts disdain
 So coarse a purchase, O be thou a fan
 To purge the chaff, and keep the winnow'd grain :
 Make clean thy thoughts, and dress thy mixt desires
 Thou art Heav'n's tasker ; and thy God requires,
 The purest of thy floor, as well as of thy fires.

Let grace condu&t thee to the paths of peace,
 And wisdom bless the souls unblemish'd ways ;
 No matter then, how short or long's the lease,
 Whose date determines thy self-numbred days :
 No need to care, for wealth's or fame's increase,
 Nor Mars his Palm, nor high Apollo's Bays.
 Lord, if thy gracious bounty please to fill
 The floor of my desires, and teach me skill
 To dress and chuse the corn, take those the chaff that will.

Div. Cupid.

Ven. WHat means this peevish babe? Whiff, lullaby,
 What ails my babe? What ails my babe to cry?
 Will nothing still it? Will it neither be
 Pleas'd with the nurses breast, nor mothers knee?
 What ails my bird? What moves my forward boy
 To make such whim'ring faces? Peace, my joy:
 Will nothing do? Come, come, this pettish brat,
 Thus cry and brawl, and cannot tell for what?
 Come huss and friends, my lamb; whiff lullaby,
 What ails my babe? What ails my babe to cry?
 Peace, peace my dear; alas, thy early years
 Had never faults to merit half these tears;
 Come smile upon me: Let thy mother spie
 Thy fathers image in her babies eye:
 Husband these guilty drops against thee rage
 Of harder fortunes, and the gripes of age;
 Thine eye's not ripe for tears: Whiff lullaby;
 What ails my babe, my sweet fac'd babe to cry?
 Look, look, what's here! A dainty golden thing:
 See how the dancing bells turn round and ring
 To please my bantling! Here's a knack will breed
 An hundred kisses: Here's a knack indeed.

So, now my bird is white, and looks as fair
 As Pelops shoulder, or like a milk-white pair :
 Here's right the father's smile; when Mars beguil'd
 Sick Venus of her heart, just thus he smil'd.

Divine Cupid.

Well may they smile alike ; thy base-bred boy
 And his base tier had both one cause, a toy :
 How will their subjects and their smiles agree ?
 Thy Cupid finds a toy, and Mars found thee :
 False Queen of beauty, Queen of false delights,
 Thy knee presents an Embleme, that invites
 Man to himself, whose self-transported heart
 (Ov'r-whelm'd with native sorrows, and the smart
 Of purchas'd griefs) lies whining night and day,
 Not knowing why, till heavy heeld delay,
 The dull-brow'd Pander of despair, laies by
 His leaden buskings, and presents his eye
 With antick trifles, which th' indulgent earth
 Makes proper objects of mans childish mirth,
 These be the coyn that pass, the sweets that please ;
 There's nothing good, there's nothing great but these :
 These be the pipes that base born minds dance after,
 And turn immod'rate tears to lavish laughter ;
 Whilst Heav'nly raptures pass without regard ;
 Their strings are harsh, and their high strains unheard :
 The ploughmans whistle or the trivial flute
 Find more respect than great Apollo's lute :
 We'll look to Heav'n, and trust to higher joys ;
 Let swine love husks, and children whine for toys.

S. BERN.

That is the true and chief joy, which is not conceived from the creature, but received from the Creator, which (being once possesst thereof) none can take from thee: Whereto all pleasure being compared is torment, all joy is grief, sweet things are bitter, all glory is baseness, and all delectable things are despicable.

S. BERN.

She is empty, and void, and waste.

SHe's empty : hark, she sounds, there's nothing there
 But noise to fill thy ear ;
 Thy vain enquiry can at length but find
 A blast of murm'ring wind :
 It is a cask, that seems as full, as fair ,
 But meerly tunn'd with air ;
 Fond youth, go build thy hopes on better grounds :
 The soul that vainly sounds
 Her joys upon this world but feeds on empty sounds.

She's empty : hark, she sounds : there nothing in't,
 The spark-ingendring flint
 Shall sooner melt, and hardest raunce shall first
 Dissolve and quench thy thirst,
 Ere this false world shall still thy stormy breast
 With smooth-fac'd calms of rest ?
 Thou mayst as well expect Meridian light
 From shades of black-mouth'd night,
 As in this empty world to find a full delight.

She's empty : hark, the sounds ; 'tis void and vast ;
 What if some flatt'ring blast
 Of flatuous honour should perchance be there,
 And whisper in thine ear ?
 It is but wind, and blows but where it list,
 And vanisheth like a mist.
 Poor honour earth can give ! What gen'rous mind
 Would be so base to bind
 Her Heav'n-bred soul a slave to serve a blast of wind ?

She's empty : hark, the sounds : 'tis but a ball
For fools to play withall :
The painted film but of a stronger bubble,
That's lin'd with filken trouble :
It is a world, whose work and recreation
Is vanity and vexation ;
A Hag, repair'd with vice complexion paint,
A quest-house of complaint :
It is a saint, a fiend, worse fiend, when most a saint.

She's empty : hark, she sounds : 'tis vain and void,
What's here to be enjoy'd :
But grief and sickness, and large bills of sorrow,
Drawn now, and cross'd to morrow ?
Or what are men, but puffs of dying breath,
Reviv'd with living death ?
Fond lad, O build thy hopes on surer grounds
Then what dull flesh propounds :
Trust not this hollow world, she's empty : hark, she sounds.

And has more obvious rubs then thine:
'Tis true my way is hard and strait,
And leads me through a thorny gate:
Whose rankling pricks are sharp and fell;
The Common way to Heav'n's by hell:
'Tis true; thy path is short and fair,
And free from rubs: Ah, fool beware,
The safest road's not always ev'n;
The way to Hell's a seeming Heav'n:
Think'st thou the Crown of Glory's had
With idle ease, fond Cyprian lad?
Think'st thou, that mirth, and vain delights
High feed, and shadow-shortning nights,
Soft knees, full bones and beds of down,
Are proper prologues to a Crown?
Or canst thou hope to come and view.

That's rais'd with brakish drops and blood
And shall the promis'd crown of life
Be thought a toy, not worth a strife?

 All this may well confront ; all this shall ne'r confound me.

Christ's Cross is the Chriscross of all our happiness : It delivers us from all blindness of error, and enriches our darkness with light ; it restoreth the troubled soul to rest ; It bringeth strangers to Gods acquaintance ; It maketh remote forreigners near neighbours ; it cutteth off discord ; concludeth a league of everlasting peace ; and is the bounteous author of all good.

S. BERN. in Ser. de Resur.

We find glory in the Cross ; to us that are saved, it is the power of God, and the fulness of all vertues.

 What shall I do ? lest I be too much tost
 On worldly crosses, Lord, let me be crost.

P R O V. 26. 11.

As a dog returneth to his vomit, so a fool returneth to his folly.

O I am wounded! and my wounds do smart
Beyond my patience, or great Æbiron's art;
I yeild, I yeild; the day, the Palm is thine;
Thy bow's more true; thy shaft's more fierce than mine.
Hold, hold, O hold thy conqu'ring hand. What need
To send more darts? the first has done the deed:
Oft have we struggled, when our equal arms
Shot equal shafts, inflicted equal harms;
But this exceeds, and with her flaming head,
Twy-fork'd with death, has struck my conscience dead.
But must I die? Ah me! if that were all,
Then, then I'd stroke my bleeding wounds, and call
This dart a cordial, and with joy endure
These harsh ingredients, where my grief's my cure.
But something whispers in my dying ear,
There is an after-day; which day I fear:
The slender debt to Nature's quickly paid,
Discharg'd perchance with greater ease than made;
But if that pale-fac'd Sergeant make arrest,
Ten thousand actions would (whereof the least
Is more than all this lower world can bail)
Be entred, and condemn me to the Jail
Of Stygian darkness, bound in red hot chains,
And grip'd with tortures worse than Titian pains.
Farewel my vain, farewell my loose delights;
Farewel my rambling days, my rev'ling nights;

'Twas

'Twas you betray'd me first, and when ye found
My soul advantage, gave my soul the wound :
Farewel my bullion gods, whose sovereign looks
So often catch'd me with their golden hooks :
Go seek another slave ; ye must all go ;
I cannot serve my God and Bullion too.
Farewel false honour ; you, whose airy wings
Did mount my soul above the thrones of Kings ;
Then flatter'd me, took pet, and in disdain,
Nipt my green buds : then kick'd me down again :
Farewel my bow ; farewel my Cyprian Quiver ;
Farewel dear world, farewel dear world for ever.
O, but this most delicious world, how sweet
Her pleasures relish ! Ah ! How jump they meet
The grasping soul, and with their sprightly fire,
Revive, and raise. and rowze the wrapt desire !
For ever ? O, to part so long ? what ? never.
Meet more ? another year, and then for ever :
Too quick resolves do resolution wrong ;
What, part so soon, to be divorc'd so long ?
Things to be done are long to be debated ;
Heav'n is not decay'd. Repentance is not dated.

A just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again, but the wicked shall fall into mischief.

TIs but a foil at best, and that's the most
Your skill can boast :
My slipp'ry footing fail'd me ; and you tript
Just as I slipt :
My wanton weakneis did her self betray
With too much play :
I was too bold, He never yet stood sure :
That stands secure :
Who ever trusted to his native strength,
But fell at length ?
The title's craz'd, the tenure is not good,

Boast not thy skill, the righteous man falls oft,
Yet falls but soft :
There may be dirt to mire him, but no stones
To crush his bones :
What if he staggers ? Nay, put case he be
Foil'd on his knee ?
That very knee will bend to Heav'n, and woo
For mercy too.

SO, now the Soul's sublim'd ; her sow'r desires
Are recalcin'd in heaven's well temp'ed fires ;
The heart restor'd and purg'd from droffie nature,
Now finds the freedom of a new-born creature :
It lives another life, it breaths new breath ;
It neither fears nor feels the sting of death.
Like as the idle vagrant (having none)
That boldly 'dopts, each house he views, his own ;
Makes ev'ry purse his chequer ; and at pleasure,
Walks forth and taxes all the world like Cæsar ;
At length by vertue of a just command,
His sides are lent to a severer hand ;
Whereon his Pass, not fully understood,
Is taxed in a manuscript of blood ;
Thus past from town to town ; until he come
A sore repentant to his native home :
Ev'n so the rambling heart, that idly roves
From crimes to sin, and uncontrol'd removes
From lust to lust, when wanton flesh invites
From old-worn pleasures to new choice delights,
At length corrected by the filial rod
Of his offended (but his gracious God)
And lash'd from sins to sighs ; and by degrees,
From sighs to vows, from vows to bended knees ;
From bended knees to a true pensive brest ;
From thence to torments, not by tongue exprest ;

Returns ; (and from his sinful self exil'd)
Finds a glad father, he a welcome child :
O then it lives ; O then it lives involv'd
In secret raptures ; pants to be dissolv'd :
The royal Off-spring of a second Birth
Sets ope to Heav'n, and shuts the door to earth :
If love-sick Jove commanded clouds should hap
To rain such show'rs as quickned Danae's lap :
Or Dogs (far kinder than their purple master)
Should lick his sores, he laughs, nor weeps the faster
If earth (Heav'n's rival) dart her idle ray ;
To Heav'n, 'tis wax, and to the world, 'tis clay :
If earth present delights, it scorns to draw,
But like the jet unrub'd, disdains that straw :
No hope deceives it, and no doubt divides it ;
No grief disturbs it ; and no error guides it ;
No guilt condemns, and no folly shames it ;
No sloth besots it ; and no lust enthralls it ;
No scorn afflicts it, and no passion gawls it :
It is a cark'net of immortal life ;
An Ark of peace ; the lifts of sacred strife ;
A purer piece of endless transitory ;
A shrine of Grace, a little throne of Glory :
A Heav'n born Off-spring of a new-born birth ;
An earthly Heav'n ; an ounce of Heav'nly earth.

The Entertainment.

ALL you whose better thoughts are newly born,
And (rebaptiz'd with holy fire) can scorn
The worlds base trash, whose necks disdain to bear
Th' imperious yoke of Satan; whose chaste ear
No wanton Songs of Syrens can surprize
With false delight; whose more then Eagle-eyes
Can view the glorious flames of gold, and gaze
On glitt'ring beams of honour, and do not daze;
Whose souls can spurn at pleasure, and deny
The loose suggestions of the flesh, draw nigh:

And you whose am'rous, whose select desires
Would feel the warmth of those transcendent fires,
Which (like the rising Sun) put out the light
Of Venus star, and turn her day to night;
You that would love, and have your passions crown'd
With greater happiness, than can be found
In your own wishes; you that would affect
Where neither scorn, nor guile, nor disrespect
Shall wound your tortur'd souls; that would enjoy,
Where neither want can pinch, nor fulness cloy,
Nor double doubt afflicts, nor baser fear
Unflames your courage in pursuit, draw near,
Shake hands with earth, and let your soul respect
Her joys no further, than her joys reflect
Upon her makers glory; if thou swim
In wealth, see him in all; see all in him:

Sink'st thou in want, and is thy small cruse spent?
See him in want: enjoy him in content:
Conceiv'st him lodg'd in Cross, or lost in pain?
In Pray'r and Patience find him out again:
Make Heav'n thy Mistress, let no change remove
Thy loyal heart, be fond; be sick of love:
What if he stop his ear, or knit his brow?
At length he'll be as fond, as sick as thou:
Dart up thy soul in groans: Thy secret groan
Shall pierce his ear, shall pierce his ear alone:
Dart up thy soul in vows: Thy sacred vow
Shall find him out, where Heav'n alone shall know:
Dart up thy soul in sighs: Thy whisp'ring sigh
Shall rouse his ears, and fear no listner nigh:
Send up thy groans, thy sighs, thy closet-vow;
Ther's none, ther's none shall know but Heav'n and thou:
Groans fresh'd with vows, and vows made salt with tears,
Unscale his eyes, and scale his conquer'd ears:
Shoot up the bosome-shafts of thy desire,
Feather'd with faith, and double-fork'd with fire.
And they will hit: Fear not, where Heav'n bids come:
Heav'n's never deaf, but when man's heart is dumb.

My Soul hath desired thee in the night

Ësay. 26

I.

ISAIAH 26. 6.

My Soul hath desired thee in the night.

Good God? what horrid darkness doth surround
My groping soul! how are my senses bound
In utter shades; and muffled from the light,
Lurk in the bosom of eternal night!
The bold-fac'd Lamp of Heav'n can set and rise;
And with his morning glory fill the eyes
Of gazing mortals; his victorious ray
Can chase the shadows, and restore the day:
Nights bashful Empress, though she often wain,
As oft repents her darkness, primes again;
And with her circling horns doth re embrace
Her brothers wealth, and orbs her silver face.
But ah, my Sun deep swallow'd in his fall,
Is set and cannot shine, nor rise at all:
My bankrupt wain can beg nor borrow light;
Alas, my darkness is perpetual night,
Falls have their risings, wainings have their primes,
And desp'rate sorrows wait their better times;
Ebs have their Flouds, and Autumns have their Springs:
All States have changes hurried with the swings
Of Chance and Time, still riding to and fro:
Terrestrial bodies, and celestial too.
How often have I vainly grop'd about,
With length'ned arms to find a passage out,
That I might catch those beams mine eye desires,
And bathe my soul in those celestial fires?
Like as the haggard, cloistered in her mew,
To scowr her downy robes, and to renew

Her

Her broken flags, preparing t'overlook
The tim'rous Mallard at the sliding brook,
Jets oft from perch to perch ; from stock to ground,
From ground to window, thus surveying round
Her Dove befeather'd Prison, till at length
(Calling her noble birth to mind, and strength
Whereto her wing was born) her ragged beak
Nipps off her jangling jesses, strives to break
Her gingling fetters, and begins to bate
At ev'ry glimpse, and darts at ev'ry grate :
Ev'n so my weary soul, that long has bin
An Inmate in this Tenement of sin,
Lock'd up by cloud-brow'd Error, which invites
My cloist' red thoughts to feed on black delights,
Now scorns her shadows, and begins to dart
Her wing'd desires at thee, that only art
The Sun she seeks, whose rising beams can fright
These duskie-clouds that make so dark a night :
Shine forth great Glory, shine ; that I may see
Both how to loath my self, and honour Thee :
But if my weakness force thee to deny
Thy flames, yet lend the twilight of thine eye :
If I must want those Beams ; I wish, yet grant,
That I, at least, may wish those Beams, I want.

S. AUGUST

S. AUGUST. Soliloqu. cap. 33.

There was a great dark cloud of vanity before mine eyes, so that I could not see the Sun of Justice & the Light of Truth: I being the son of darkness, was involved in darkness: I loved my darkness, because I knew not thy light: I was blind, and loved my blindness, and did walk from darkness to darkness: But Lord thou art my God, who hast led me from darkness and the shadow of death; hast called me into thy glorious light, and behold, I see.

EPIG. 1.

*My soul, cheer up; what if the night be long,

When Peter's cock begins to crow, 'tis day.*

II.

P S A L 69. 3.

O Lord, thou knowest my foolishness, and my sins are not hid from thee.

SEEST thou this fullsom Ideot? in what measure
He seems transported with the antick pleasure
Of childish baubles? Canst thou but admire
The empty fulness of his vain desire?
Canst thou conceive such poor delights, as these
Can fill th' insatiate soul of man, or please
The fond aspect of his deluded eye?
Reader, such very fools are thou and I:
False puffs of honour; the deceitful streams
Of wealth; the idle, vain and empty dreams
Of pleasure, are our traffick, and ensnare
Our souls, the threefold subject of our care;
We toil for trash, we barter solid joys
For airy trifles, sell our Heav'n for toys:
We knatch at barly grains, whilst pearls stand by
Despis'd; such very fools are thou and I.
Aim'st thou at honour? Does not th' Ideot shake it
In his left hand? Fond man, step forth and take it:
Or would'st thou wealth? see now the fool presents thee
With a full basket, if such wealth contents thee:
Would'st thou take pleasure? if the fool unstride
His prancing Stallion, thou maist up and ride:
Fond man, such is the pleasure, wealth, and honour
The earth affords such fools, as dote upon her;
Such is the game whereat earth's Ideots flie;
Such Ideots, ah! such fools are thou and I:

Had rebel-man's fool-hardiness extended
No farther than himself, and there had ended,
It had been just; but thus enrag'd to fly
Upon the eternal eyes of Majesty,
And drag the Son of Glory from the breast
Of his indulgent Father; to arrest
His great and sacred Person: in disgrace
To spit and spaul upon his Sun-bright-face;
To taunt him with base terms; and being bound
To scourge his soft, his trembling sides; to wound
His head with thorns; his heart with human fears;
His hands with nails, and his pale flank with spears:
And then to paddle in the purer stream
Of his spilt blood, is more, than most extreme:
Great builder of Mankind, canst thou propound
All this to thy bright eyes, and not confound
Thy handy work? O! Canst thou choose but see,
That mad'st the eye? Can ought be hid from thee?
Thou seest our persons, Lord, and not our guilt;
Thou seest not, what thou maist, but what thou wilt:
The hand that form'd us is enforc'd to be
A Screen set up betwixt thy work and thee:
Look, look upon that Hand, and thou shalt spie
An open wound, a through-fare for thine eye;
Or if that wound be clos'd, that passage be
Deny'd between thy gracious eyes and me,
Yet view the scar; that scar will countermand
Thy wrath: O read my fortune in thy hand.

Implores the Son David ? Soul, It is I.

Jes. Who art thou ? Soul. Oh, a deeply wounded breast
That's heavy laden and would fain have rest.

Jes. I have no scraps, and dogs must not be fed
Like household children, with the childrens bread.

Soul. True, Lord ; yet tolerate a hungry whelp
To lick their crumbs : O Son of David, help.

Jes. Poor Soul, what ail'st thou ? Soul. O I burn, I fry,
I cannot rest, I know not where to fly

To find some ease ; I turn'd my blubber'd face
From man to man ; I roll from place to place

I avoid my tortures, to obtain relief,
But still am dogg'd and hunted with my grief :

My mid-night torments call the sluggish night
And when the morning's come, they woo the night.

Jes. Surcease thy tears, and speak thy free desires (fires
So. Quench, quench my flames, and swage those scorching

Jes. Canst thou believe, my hand can cure thy grief ?

Soul. Lord, I believe ; Lord, help my unbelief.

Jes. Hold forth thine arm and let my fingers try
Thy pulse ; where chiefly doth thy torment lie ;

Soul. From head to foot ; it reigns in ev'ry part ;
But plays the self-law'd tyrant in my heart.

Jes. Canst thou digest? Canst relish wholsom food?
How stands the tast? Soul. To nothing that is good:
All sinful trash, and earths unsav'ry stuff
I can digest, and relish well enough.

Jesus. Is not thy blood as cold as hot, by turns?

Soul. Cold to what's good; to what is bad it burns!

Jesus. How old's thy grief? Soul. I took it at the fall
With eating fruit. Jes. 'Tis Epidemical:
Thy blood's infected, and th' infection sprung
From a bad liver: 'Tis a feaver strong
And full of death, unless, with present speed,
A vein be opened, thou must die, or bleed.

Soul. O I am faint and spent: that lance that shall Let forth my blood, lets forth my life withal:
My soul wants cordials, and has greater need
Of blood, then (being spent so far) to bleed:
I faint already, if I bleed, I dy.

Jes. 'Tis either thou must bleed, sick soul or I:
My blood's a cordial. He that sucks my veins,
Shall cleanse his own, and conquer greater pains
Then these: chear up; this precious blood of mine
Shall cure thy grief; my heart shall bleed for thine
Believe and view me with a faithful eye,
Thy soul shall neither languish, bleed nor die.

P S A L. 25. 18.

*Look upon my affliction and my pain, and

BOth work and strokes? Both, lash and labour too?
What more could Edom, or proud Ashur do?
Stripes, after Stripes; and blows succeeding blows?
Lord, has thy scourge no mecry, and my woes.
No end? My pains no ease? No intermission?
Is this the state? Is this the sad condition
Of those that trust thee? Will thy goodness please
T' allow no other favours? None but these?
Will not the Rhet'rick of my torments move?
Are these the symptoms, these the signs of love?
Is't not enough, enough that I fulfil
Thy toylsome task of thy laborious will?
May not this labour expiate and purge
My sin without the addition of a scourge?
Look on my cloudy brow, how fast it reins
Sad showers of sweat, the fruits of fruitless pains:
Behold these ridges; see what purple furrows
Thy plow has made; O think upon those sorrows
That once were thine; wilt thou not be woo'd
To mercy by the charms of sweat and blood?
Canst thou forget that drowsie mount, wherein
Thy dull Disciples sleep, was not my sin
There punish'd in my soul? did not this brow
Then sweat in thine? Were not those drops enow?
Remember Golgotha, where that spring-tide
O' reflow'd thy soverain Sacramental side:

There was no sin, there was no guilt in Thee,
That caus'd those pains ; thou sweat'st, thou bledst for me.
Was there not blood enough, when one small drop
Had pow'r to ransom thousand worlds, and stop
The mouth of Justice ? Lord, I bled before
In thy deep wounds ; can Justice challenge more ?
Or dost thou vainly labour to hedge in
Thy losses from my sides ? My blood is thin,
And thy free bounty scorns such easie thrift ;
No, no, thy blood came not as love but gift.
But must I ever grind ? And must I earn
Nothing but stripes ? O wilt thou disalter
The rest thou gav'st ? Hast thou perus'd the curse
Thou laid'st on Adam's fall, and made it worse ?
Canst thou repent of mercy ? Heav'n thought good
Lost man should feed in sweat ; not work in blood :
Why dost thou wound th'already wounded breast ?
Ah me ! my life is but a pain at best :
I am but dying dust : my day's a span ;
What pleasure tak'st thou in the blood of man ?
Spare, spare thy scourge, and be not so austere ;
Send fewer strokes, or lend more strength to bear.

S. BERN. Hom. 81. in Cant.

Miserable man ! who shall deliver me from the reproach of this shameful bondage ? I am a miserable man but a free man ; free, because a man ; miserable, because a servant : In regard of my bondage, miserable, in regard of my will, inexcusable : For my will, that was free, beslaved it self to sin, by assenting to sin ; for he that committeth sin, is the servant to sin.

EPIG. 4.

Tax not thy God : Thine own defaults did urge
 This two-fold punishment ; the mill, the scourge.
 Thy sin's the author of thy self-tormenting :
 Thou grind'st for sinning ; scourg'd for not repenting.

V.

J O B 10. 9:

Remember I beseech thee, that thou hast made me as the clay, and wilt thou bring me to dust again ?

THUS from the bosom of the new made earth
Poor man was delv'd, and had his unborn birth;
The same the stuff, the self same hand doth trim
The plant that fades, the beast that dies, and him:
One was their sire, one was their common mother,
Plants are his sisters, and the beast his brother,
The elder too; beasts draw the self-same breath,
Wax old alike, and die the self-same death:
Plants grow as he, with fairer robes arrai'd;
Alike they flourish, and alike they fade:
The beast in sense exceeds him, and in growth,
The three-ag'd Oak doth thrice exceed them both:
Why look'st thou then so big, thou little span
Of earth? what art thou more in being man?
I, but thy great Creator did inspire
My chosen earth, with thy diviner fire
Of reason gave me judgment and a will:
That, to know good; this, to choose good from ill:
He puts the reigns of pow'r in my free hand,
And jurisdiction over Sea and Land,
He gave me art to lengthen out my span
Of life, and made me all, in being man:
I, but thy passion has committed treason
Against the sacred person of thy reason:
Thy judgment is corrupt, perverse thy will;
That knows no good, and this makes choice of ill:

The

The greater height sends down the deeper fall ;
And good declin'd turns bad, turns worst of all.
Say then, proud inch of living earth, what can
Thy greatness claim the more in being man ?
O but my soul transcends the pitch of nature,
Born up by th' Image of her high Creator ;
Out-braves the life of reason, and beats down
Her waxen wings, kicks off her brazen crown,
My heart's a living Temple t'entertain
The King of Glory, and his glorius train ;
How can I mend my title then ? where can
Ambition find a higher stile than man ?
Ah, but that Image is defac'd and soil'd ;
Her Temple's raz'd, her Altars all defil'd ;
Her Vessels are polluted and distain'd
With cloathed lust, her ornaments prophan'd ;
Her oyl-forfaken lamps, and hallow'd tapours
Put out ; her incense breaths unsav'ry vapours :
Why swell'it thou then so big, thou little span
Of earth ? what art thou more in being man ?
Eternal Potter, whose blest hands did lay
My course foundation from a sod of clay,
Thou know'st my slender vessel's apt to leak ;
Thou know'st my brittle temper's prone to break ;
Are my bones brazil, or my flesh of oak !
O, mend what thou hast made, what I have broke :
Look, look with gentle eyes, and in thy day
Of vengeance, Lord, remember I am clay.

S. AUGUST. Soliloq. 32.

shall I ask, who made me? It was thou that madest me, without whom nothing was made: Thou art my maker, and I thy work. I thank thee, my Lord God, by whom I live, and by whom all things subsist, because thou madest me: I thank thee, O my Potter, because thy hands have made me, because thy hands have formed me:

EPIG. 5.

*Why swell'st thou, man, puffed up with fame and purse?
Th'art better earth, but born to dig the worse:
Thou cam'st from earth, to earth thou must return,
And art but earth cast from the womb to th'urn.*

VI.

What shall I do unto thee, O thou preserver of men: why hast thou set me as a mark against thee. Job 7. 20

VI.

J O B. 7. 20.

*I have sinned : What shall I do unto thee,
O thou preserver of Men ? Why dost thou set me as a mark against thee ?*

Lord, I have done ; and Lord, I have misdone ;
'Tis folly to contest, to strive with one
That is too strong ; 'tis folly to assail
Or prove an arm, that will, that must prevail.
I've done, I've done ; these trembling hands have thrown
Their daring weapons down : The day's thine own :
Forbear to strike where thou hast won the field.
The palm, the palm is thine : I yield, I yield.
These treach'rous hands that were so vainly bold
To try a thriveless combat, and to hold
Self-wounding weapons up, are now extended
For mercy from thy hand ; that knee that bended
Upon her guardless guard doth now repent
Upon his naked floor ; See both are bent,
And sue for pity : O my ragged wound
Is deep and desp'rate, it is drench'd and drown'd
In blood and briny tears : It doth begin
To stink without, and putrifie within.
Let that victorious hand that now appears
Just in my blood, prove gracious to my tears :
Thou great preserver of presumptuous man,
What shall I do ? what satisfaction can
Poor dust and ashes make ? O if that blood
That yet remains unshed, were half as good
As blood of oxen ; if my death might be
An offering to atone my God and me,

I would disdain injurious life, and stand
A suiter to be wounded from thy hand.
But may thy wrongs be measur'd by the span
Of life? or balanc'd with the blood of man?
No, no, eternal sin expects for guerdon,
Eternal penance, or eternal pardon:
Lay down thy weapons, turn thy wrath away,
And pardon him that hath no price to pay;
Enlarge that soul, which base presumption binds;
Thy justice cannot loose what mercy finds:
O thou that wilt not bruise the broken reed,
Rub not my sores, nor prick the wounds that bleed.
Lord, if the peevish infant fights and flies,
With unpar'd weapons, at his mothers eyes.
Her frowns (half mix'd with smiles) may chance to shew
An angry love-trick on his arm, or so;
Where if the Babe but make a lip and cry,
Her heart begins to melt, and by and by
She coaks his dewy cheeks; her babe she blisses,
And choaks her language with a thousand kisses;
I am that child; Lo, here I prostrate lye,
Pleading for mercy; I repent and cry
For gracious pardon: let thy gentle ears
Hear that in words, what mothers judge in tears:
See not my frailties, Lord, but through my fear,
And look on ev'ry trespass through a tear:
Then calm thy anger, and appear more mild;
Remember, th'art a Father, I a child.

S. BERN. Ser. 21. in Cant.

Miserable man! Who shall deliver me from the reproach of this shameful bondage? I am a miserable man, but a free man: Free, because like to God; miserable, because against God: O keeper of mankind, why hast thou set me as a mark against thee? Thou hast set me, because thou hast not hindred me: It is just that thy enemy should be my enemy, and that he who repugneth thee, should repugn me: I who am against thee, am against my self.

E P I G. 6.

But form'd, and fight? But born, and then rebel?
 How small a blast will make a bubble swell?
 But dare the floor affront the hand that laid it?
 So apt is dust to fly in's face that made it.

VII.

Wherefore hidest thou thy face, &
holdest mee for thine Enemy. Job: 13. 2-4

VII.

JOB 13. 24.

Wherefore hidest thou my face, and holdest me for thine enemy ?

Why dost thou shade thy lovely face ? O why
Does that eclipsing hand so long, deny
The Sun-shine of my soul-enl'ving eye ?

Without that Light, what light remains in me ?
Thou art my Life, my Way, my Light, in Thee
I live, I move, and by thy beams I see :

Thou art my Life, If thou but turn away,
My life's a thousand deaths : Thou art my Way :
Without thee, Lord, I travel not, but stray.

My Light thou art ; without thy glorious sight,
Mine eyes are darkned with perpetual night.
My God, thou art my Way, my Life, my Light.

Thou art my Way ; I wander, if thou flie :
Thou art my Light ; if hid how blind am I ?
Thou art my Life ; if thou withdraw, I die.

Mine eyes are blind and dark ; I cannot see ;
To whom or whither should my darkness flee,
But to the Light ? And who's that Light but Thee ?

My path is lost ; my wandring steps do stray ;
I cannot safely go, nor safely stay ;
Whom should I seek, but Thee, my Path, my Way ?

O, I am dead : To whom shall I, poor I,
Repair ? To whom shall my sad ashes fly
But Life ? And where is Life but in thy eye ?

And yet thou turn'st away thy face, and fliest me ;
And yet I sue for grace, and thou deny'st me ;
Speak art thou angry, Lord, or only try'st me ?

Unscreen those heav'nly lamps, or tell me why
Thou shad'st thy face ? perhaps thou think'st no eye
Can view those flames and not drop down and die.

If that be all, shine forth and draw thee nigher ;
Let me behold and die, for my desire
Is Phœnix like to perish in that fire.

Death conquer'd Lazarus was redeem'd by thee ;
If I am dead, Lord, set deaths prisoner free ;
Am I more spent, or stink I worse than he ?

If my puff'd life be out, give leave to time
My shameless snuff at that bright Lamp of thine ;
O what's thy Light, the less for lightning mine ?

If I have lost my Path, Great Shepherd, say,
Shall I still wander in a doubtful way ?
Lord, shall a Lamb of Isr'el's sheep-fold stray ?

Thou art my Pilgrims Path, the blind man's Eye ;
The dead man's Life ; on thee my hopes rely ;
If thou remove, I err ; I grope ; I die.

Disclose thy Sun-beams ; close thy wings, and stay ;
See, see how I am blind, and dead, and stray,
O thou that art my Light, my Life, my Way.

S. AUGUST. Soliloq. cap. 1.

Why dost thou hide thy face? Happily thou wilt say, none can see thy face and live: Ab Lord, let me die, that I may see thee, let me see thee, that I may die: I would not live, but die; that I may see Christ, I desire death; that I may live with Christ, I despise life.

ANSELM. Med. cap. 5.

O excellent hiding, which is become my perfection! My God thou hidest thy treasure, to kindle my desire: Thou hidest thy pearl, to inflame the seeker; thou delay'st to give, that thou might teach me to importune; seem'st not to hear, to make me persevere.

VIII.

J E R. 9. 1.

O that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I may weep day and night.

O That mine eyes were springs, and could transform
Their drops to seas? My sighs into a storm
Of Zeal, and sacred violence, wherein
This lab'ring vessel laden with her sin,
Might suffer sudden shipwrack, and be spilt
Upon that Rock, where my drench'd soul may sit
Orewhelm'd with plenteous passion; O and there
Drop, Drop, into an everlasting tear!
Ah me! That ev'ry sliding vein that wanders
Through this vast Isle, did work her wild Meanders
In brackish tears instead of blood, and swell
This flesh with holy Dropsies, from whose Well,
Made warm with sighs, may sume my waisting breath
Whilst I dissolve in streams, and reek to death!
These narrow sluices of my dribling eyes
Are much too streight for those quick springs that rise
And hourly fill my Temples to the top;
I cannot shed for ev'ry sin a drop;
Great builder of mankind, why hast thou sent,
Such swelling floods, and made so small a vent?
O that this flesh had been compos'd of snow,
Instead of earth; and bones of ice, that so,

Feeling the fervor of my sin ; and loathing
The fire I feel, I might be thaw'd to nothing !
O thou that didst, with hopeful joy, entomb
Me thrice three Moons in thy laborious womb,
And then with joyful pain, brought'st forth a Son,
What worth thy labour has thy labour done ?
What was there ? Ah ! What was there in my birth
That could deserve the easiest smile of mirth ?
A man was born : Alas, and what's a man ?
A scuttle full of dust, a measur'd span
Of sitting time ; a furnish'd Pack, whose wares
Are sullen griefs, and soul tormenting Cares :
A vial of tears, a vessel tunn'd with breath,
By sickness broacht, to be drawn out by death :
A hapless helpless thing ; that, born does cry
To feed, that feeds to live, that lives to die.
Great God and Man, whose eye, spent drops so often
For me that cannot weep enough ; O soften
These marble brains, and strike this flinty rock ;
Or, if the musick of thy Peters Cock
Will more prevail, fill, fill my hearkning ears
With that sweet sound, that I may melt in tears !
I cannot weep until thou broach mine eye ;
Or give me vent, or else I burst, and die.

S. AMBROS in Psal. 118.

He that commits sins to be wept for, cannot weep for sins committed: And being himself most lamentable hath no tears to lament his offences.

NAZIANZ. Orat. 3.

Tears are the deluge of sin, and the worlds sacrifice.

S. HIERON. in Esaiam.

Prayer appeases God, but a tear compels him: That moves him, but this constrains him.

EPIG. 8.

Thy way to Heav'n is through the Sea of tears:
It is a stormy passage, where is found
The wrack of many a ship, but no man drown'd.

PSALM 18. 5.

The sorrows of hell compassed me about, and the snares of death prevented me.

IS not this Type well cut? In ev'ry part
Full of rich cunning? Fil'd with Zeuxian Art?
Are not the Hunters, and their Stygian Hounds
Limm'd full to th' life? Didit ever hear the sounds
The musick, and the lip divideth breaths
Of the strong winded Horn, Recheats, and deaths;
Done more exact? Th' infernal Nimrods hollow?
The lawless purliews? And the Game they follow?
The hidden Engines, and the snares that lie
So undikover'd, so obscure to th' eye?
The new-drawn net, and her intangled Prey?
And him that closes it? Beholder, say,
Is't not well done? seems not an em'lous strife
Betwixt the rare cut picture and the life?
These purliew men are Devils? and the hounds,
(Those quick-nos'd Canibals, that scour the grounds)
Temptations and the Game, the Fiends pursue;
Are human souls, which still they have in view;
Whose fury if they chance to scape, by flying
The skilful Hunter plants his net cloose lying
On th' unsuspected earth, baited with treasure,
Ambitious honour, and self wasting pleasure:
Where, if the soul but stoop, death stands prepar'd
To draw the net, and drown, the soul's ensnar'd.

Poor soul ! how art thou hurried too and fro ?
Where canst thou safely stay ? where safely go ?
If stay ; these hot-mouth'd Hounds are apt to tear thee,
If go : the snares enclose, the nets ensnare thee :
What good in this bad world has pow'r t'invite thee
A willing Guest ? wherein can earth delight thee ?
Here pleasures are but itch : Her wealth, but Cares :
A world of Dangers, and a world of snares :
The close pursuers busie hands do plant
Snares in thy substance ; Snares attend thy want ;
Snares in thy credit ; Snares in thy disgrace ;
Snares in thy high estate ; Snares in thy base ;
Snares tuck thy bed ; and Snares surround thy boord ;
Snares watch thy thoughts ; and Snares attach thy word ;
Snares in thy quiet ; Snares in thy commotion ;
Snares in thy diet ; Snares in thy devotion ;
Snares lurk in thy resolves, Snares in thy doubt,
Snares lie within thy heart, and Snares without,
Snares are above thy head, and Snares beneath,
Snares in thy sickness, Snares are in thy death :
O, if these purlieus be so full of danger,
Great God of hearts, the worlds sole sov'raign Ranger,
Preserve thy Deer, and let my soul be blest
In thy safe Forrest, where I seek for rest :
Then let the Hell-hounds roar, I fear no ill,
Rouze me they may, but have no pow'r to kill.

S. AMBROS. lib. 4. in cap. 4. in Lucæ.

The reward of honours, the height of power, the delicacy of diet, and the beauty of an harlot are the snares of the Devil.

S. AMBROS. de bono mortis.

Whilst thou seekest pleasures, thou runnest into snares, for the eye of the harlot, is the snare of the Adulterer.

EPIG. 6.

Are done, just Judge: See here the pris'ner stands.

Jes. What has the pris'ner done? Say; what's the cause
Of his commitment? Just. He hath broken the laws
Of his too gracious God; conspir'd the death
Of that great Majesty that gave him breath,
And heaps transgression, Lord, upon transgression.

Jes. How know'st thou this? Ju. Ev'n by his own confes-
His sins are crying; and they cry'd aloud! (sion:
They cry'd to heav'n, they cry'd to heav'n for blood.

Jes. What say'st thou sinner? hast thou ought to plead,
That sentence should not pass? hold up thy head,
And shew thy brazen, thy rebellious face.

Sin. Ah me! I dare not: I'm too vile and base
To tread upon the earth, much more, to lift
Mine eyes to heav'n; I need no other shrift
Than mine own conscience; Lord, I must confess,
I am no more than dust, and no whit less
Than my indictment stiles me; Ah, if thou
Search too severe, with too severe a brow,
What flesh can stand? I have transgress'd thy laws;
My merits plead thy vengeance; not my cause:

Just.

Just. Lord, shall I strike the blow? Jes. Hold, Justice, Sinner, speak on; what hast thou more to say? (stay

Sin. Vile as I am, and of my self abhorr'd,
I am thy handy-work, thy creature, Lord,
Stamp't with thy glorious Image, and at first,
Most like to thee, though now a poor accurst
Convicted Caitiff, and degen'rous creature,
Here trembling at thy bar. Just. Thy fault's the greater;
Lord shall I strike the blow? Jes. Hold, Justice stay,
Speak sinner; hast thou nothing more to say?

Sin. Nothing but Mercy, Mercy; Lord my state
Is miserably poor and desperate;
I quite renounce my self, the world, and flee
From Lord to Jesus; from thy self to thee.

Just. Cease thy vain hopes; my angry God has vow'd;
Abused mercy must have blood for blood:
Shall I yet strike the blow? Jes. Stay, Justice, hold;
My bowels yearn, my fainting blood grows cold,
To view the trembling wretch? Methinks, I spie
My father's Image in the prisoners eye.

Just. I cannot hold. Jes. Then turn thy thirsty blade
Into my sides: let there the wound be made:
Chear up, dear soul; redeem thy life with mine:
My soul shall smart; my heart shall bleed for thine.

Sin. O groundless deeps! O love beyond degree!
Th' offended dies, to set th' offender free.

S. AUGUST.

Lord, If I have done that, for which thou mayest damn me; thou hast not lost that whereby thou mayest save me: Remember not, sweet Jesus, thy justice against the sinner, but thy benignity towards thy Creature: Remember not to proceed against a guilty soul, but remember thy mercy towards a miserable wretch: forget the insolence of the provoker, and behold the misery of the invoker; for what is Jesus but a Saviour?

ANSELM.

THe world's a Sea ; my flesh a Ship that's mann'd
With lab'ring Thoughts, and steer'd by Reasons hand:
My Heart's the Sea-mans Card, whereby she sails ;
My loose Affections are the greater Sails :
The top sail is my Fancie, and the Gusts
That fill these wanton sheets, are worldly Lusts.
Pray'r in the Cable, at whose end appears
The Anchor Hope, nev'r slip'd but in our fears :
My will's th' unconstant Pilot, that commands
The flagg'ring Keel; my Sins are like the Sands :
Repentance is the Bucket, and mine Eye
The Pump, unus'd (but in extreams) and dry :
My Conscience is the Plummet that doth press
The deeps, but seldom cries, A fathom less :
Smooth Calm's security ; the Gulf, despair ;
My Fraught's Corruption, and this Life's my Fair :
My Soul's the Passenger, confus'dly driven
From fear to fright ; her landing Port is Heaven.
My Seas are stormy, and my Ship doth leak ;
My Sailers rude ; my Steers-man faint and weak :
My Canvace torn, it flaps from side to side ;
My Cable's crackt, my Anchor's slightly ty'd ;
My Pilot's craz'd, my shipwrack-Sands are cloak'd ;
Mg Bucket's broken, and my Pump is choak'd ;
My Calm's deceitful ; and my Gulf too near ;
My Wares are slubber'd, and my Far's too dear :
My Plummet's light, it cannot sink nor sound ;
O shall my Rock-bethreatned Soul be drown'd ;

Iord, still the Seas, and shield my Ship from harm ;
Instru& my Sailours, guide my Steersmens arm :
Touch thou my Compass, and renew my Sails,
Send stiffer courage or send milder gales ;
Make strong my Cable ; bind my Anchor faster ;
Dire& my Pilot, and be thou his Master ;
Object the Sands to my more serious view,
Make sound my Bucket, bore my Pump anew :
New cast my Plummet, make it apt to try
Where the Rocks lurk, and where the Quick-sands lie ;
Guard thou the Gulf with love, my Calms with Care ;
Cleanse thou my fraught ; accept my slender Fare ?
Refresh the Sea-sick passenger ; cut short
His Voyage ; land him in his wished Port :
Thou, Thou, whom winds and stormy seas obey,
That through the deep gav'st grumbling Isr'el way,
Say to my soul, be safe, and then mine eye
Shall scorn grim death, although grim death stand by.
O thou whose strength-reviving Arm did cherish
Thy sinking Peter, at the point to perish,
Reach forth thy hand, or bid me tread the wave,
I'll come, I'll come : The voice that calls will save.

JOB 14. 13.

O that thou wouldst hide me in the grave, that thou wouldst keep me secret until thy wrath be past !

O Whither shall I flie ; what path untrod
Shall I seek out to scape the flaming rod
Of my offended, of my angry God ?

Where shall I sojourn ? What kind sea will hide
My head from thunder ? Where shall I abide,
Until his flames be quench'd or laid aside ?

What, if my feet should take their hasty flight;
And seek protection in the shades of night ?
Alas, no shades can blind the God of Light.

What, if my soul should take the wings of day,
And find some desert ? If she springs away,
The wings of vengeance clip as fast as they.

What, if some solid rock should entertain
My frightened soul ? Can solid rocks restrain
The stroke of Justice, and not cleave in twain ?

Nor Sea, nor Shade, nor Shield, nor Rock, nor Cave,
Nor silent Desarts, nor the sullen Grave,
What flame-ey'd fury means to smite, can save.

The Seas will part, Graves open, Rocks will split;
The Shield will cleave ; the frightened Shadows flit ;
Where Justice aims, her fiery darts must hit.

No, no, if stern-brow'd vengeance means to thunder,
There is no place above, beneath, nor under,
So close, but witll unlock, or rive in sunder.

'Tis vain to flee ; 'tis neither here nor there
Can scape that hand, until that hand forbear ;
Ah me ! Where is he not, that's every where ?

'Tis vanity to flee ; till gentle mercy shew
Her better eye, the farther off we go,
The swing of Justice deals the mightier blow.

Th' ingenuous child, corrected, doth not flie
His angry mother's hand, but clings more nigh,
And quenches with his tears her flaming eye.

Shadows are faithless, and the rocks are false ;
No trust in brass, no trust in marble walls ;
Poor cots are even as safe as Princes halls.

Great God, there is no safety here below ;
Thou art my Fortress, though thou seem'st my foe,
'Tis thou that strik'st the stroke must guard the blow.

Thou art my God ; by thee I fall or stand ;
Thy grace hath giv'n me courage to withstand
All tortures, but my conscience and thy hand.

I know thy Justice is thy self ; I know,
Just God, thy very self is Mercy too ;
If not to thee, where ? Wither should I go ?

Then work thy will ? If passion bid me flee,
My reason shall obey ; my wings shall be
Stretcht out no farther then from thee to thee.

S. AUGUST. in Psal. 33.

Whither flie I? To what place can I safely flie? To what mountain? To what den? To what strong house? What Castle shall I hold? What walls shall bold me? Whithersoever I go, my self followeth me: For whatsoever thou fliest, O man, thou maist, but thy own conscience: Wheresoever O Lord I go, I find thee, if angry, a Revenger; if appeased, a Redeemer: What way have I, but to flie from thee to thee: That thou maist avoid thy God, address thee to thy Lord.

MY Glafs is half unspent ; Forbear t'arrest
My thistlefs day too soon : my poor request
Is that my glafs may run but out the rest.

My time-devoured minutes will be done
Without thy help ; see, see how swift they run :
Cut not my thred before my thred be spun.

The gain's not great I purchase by this stay ;
What loss sustain'st thou by so small delay,
To whom ten thousand years are but a day ?

My following eye can hardly make a shift
To count my winged hours ; they fly so swift,
They scarce deserve the bounteous name of gift.

The secret wheels of hurrying Time do give
So short a warning, and so fast they drive,
That I am dead before I seem to live.

And what's a Life ? a weary Pilgrimage,
Whose glory in one day doth fill the stage
With Child-hood, Man-hood, and decrepit Age.

And what's a Life ? the flourishing array
Of the proud Summer meadow, which to day
Wears her green plush, and is to morrow hay.

And what's a Life ? A blast sustain'd with cloathing,
Maintain'd with food, retain'd with vile self-loathing,
Then weary of it self, again'd to nothing.

Read on this dial, how the shades devour
My short-liv'd winters day: hour eats up hour;
Alas, the total's but from eight to four.

Behold these Lillies (which thy hands have made
Fair copies of my life, and open laid
To view) how soon they droop, how soon they fade!

Shade not that dial, night will blind too soon;
My non-ag'd day already points to noon;
How simple is my suit! how small my boon!

Nor do I beg this slender inch, to while
The time away, or safely to beguile
My thoughts with joy; her's nothing worth a smile.

No, no: 'tis not to please my wanton ears
With frantick mirth, I beg but hours, not years;
And what thou giv'st me, I will give to tears.

Draw not that soul which would be rather led!
That Seed has yet not broke my serpents head;
O shall I die before my sins are dead?

Behold these raggs; am I a fitting gueſt
To taſt the dainties of thy royal feaſt,
With hands and face unwash'd, ungirt, unbleſt?

Fiſt, let the Jordan ſtreams (that find ſupplies
From the deep fountain of my heart) ariſe,
And cleanſe my ſpots, and clear my leprous eyes.

I have a world of ſins to be lamented;
I have a ſea of tears that muſt be vented:
O ſpare till then; and then I die contented.

What doth that Glass present before thine eye?
Sp. I see thy foe, my reconciled friend,
Grim Death, even standing at the Glasses end:
His left hand holds a branch of Palm; his right
Holds forth a two-edg'd sword. Fl. A proper sight!
And is this all? Doth thy Prospective please
Th' abused fancie with no shapés but these?
Sp. Yes, I behold the dark'ned Sun bereav'n
Of all his light, the battlements of Heav'n
Swelt'ring in flames; the Angel-guarded Son
Of glory on his high Tribunal Throne;
I see a Brimstone Sea of boyling fire,
And Fiends, with knotted whips of flaming wire,
Tort'ring poor souls, thar knash their teeth in vain,
And gnaw their flame-tormented tongues for pain.
Look, sister, how the queazy-stomack'd Graves
Vomit their dead, and how the purple waves

Scall'd their consumeless bodies, strongly cursing
All wombs for bearing, and all paps for nursing.

Fl. Can thy distemper'd fancy take delight
In view of tortures? these are shows t'affright:
Look in this glass triangular; look here,
Here's that will ravish eyes. Sp. What see'st thou there?

Fl. The world in colours, colours that distain
The cheeks of Proteus, or the silken train
Of Flora's Nymphs; such various sorts of hiew,
As Sun-confronting Iris never knew:
Here, if thou please to beautifie a town,
Thou maist; or with a hand, turn't upside down;
Here maist thou scant or widen by the measure
Of thine own will; make short or long at pleasure:
Here maist thou tire thy fancy, and advise
With shows more apt to please more curious eyes.

Sp. Ah fool! that dot'st on vain, on present toys,
And disrespect'st those true; those future joys!
How strongly are thy thoughts befooled, alas,
To dote on goods that perish with thy glass!
Nay, vanish with the turning of a hand!
Were they but painted colours, it might stand
With painted reason that they might devote thee;
But things that have no being to besot thee?
Fore-sight of future torments is the way
To baulk those ills which present joys bewray.
As thou hast fool'd thy self, so now come hither,
Break that fond glass, and let's be wise together.

S. BONAVENT. de contemptu seculi.

O that men would be wise, understand, and foresee. Be wise, to know three things: The multitude of those that are to be damned: the few number of those that are to be saved; and the vanity of transitory things: Understand three things, the multitude of sins, the omission of good things, and the loss of time; Foresee three things, the danger of death, the last judgment, and eternal punishment.

My life is spent with grief and my yeares with sighing Ps: 30: 10.

XV.

P S A L M. 30. 10.

My life is spent with grief, and my years with fighing.

WHat fallen Star rul'd my untimely birth,
That would not lend my days one hour of Mirth ?
How oft have these bare knees been bent to gain
The slender alms of one poor smile, in vain ?
How often, tir'd with the fastidious light,
Have my faint lips implor'd the shades of night ?
How often have my nightly torments pray'd
For lingring twilight, glutted with the shade ?
Day worse then night, night worse then day appears,
In fears I spend my nights, my days in tears :
I moan unpitt'd, groan without relief,
There is no end nor measure of my grief.
The smiling flow'r salutes the day ; it grows
Untouch'd with care ; it neither spins nor sows :
O that my tedious life were like this flow'r,
Or freed from grief, or finish'd with an hour :
Why was I born ? Why was I born a man ?
And why proportion'd by so large a span ?
Or why suspended by the common lot,
And being born to die, why die I not ?
Ah me ! Why is my sorrow-wasted breath
Deni'd the easie priviledge of death ?
The branded slave that tugs the weary oare,
Obtains the Sabbath of a welcome shore ?
His ransom'd stripes are heal'd, his native soil
Sweetens the mem'ry of his forreign toil :

N

But

But ah ! my sorrows are not half so blest ;
My labour finds no point, my pains no rest :
I barter sighs for tears, and tears for groans,
Still vainly rolling Sisyphæan stones :
Thou just observer, of our flying hours ;
That, with thy Adamantine fangs, devours
The brazen monuments of renown'd Kings.
Doth thy glass stand ? Or by thy moulting wings
Unapt to flie ? If not, why dost thou spare
A willing breast ; a breast that stands so fair ?
A dying breast, that hath but only breath
To beg a wound, and strength to crave a death ?
O that the pleas'd Heav'ns would once dissolve
These fleshly fetters, that so fast involve
My hamp'red soul ; then would my soul be blest
From all these ills, and wrap her thoughts in rest :
Till then, my days are months, my months are years ;
My years are ages to be spent in tears :
My grief's entail'd upon my wassful breath,
Which no recov'ry can cut off, but death,
Breath drawn in cottages, puffed out in thorns,
Begins, continues, and concludes in groans.

INNOCENT. de vilitate condit. humanæ.

O who will give mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I may bewail my miserable ingress of mans condition; the sinful progress of mans conversation, the damnable egress in mans dissolution? I will consider with tears, whereof man was made, what man doth, and what man is to do: Alas, he is formed of earth, conceived in sin, born to punishment: He doth evil things which are not lawful; he doth filthy things, which are not decent; He doth vain things, which are not expedient.

My soule hath coueted to desire thy judgments . psal . 119 . 288

THE FOURTH BOOK.

I.

R O M. 7: 23.

I see another Law in my members warring against the Law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the Law of sin.

I

O How my will is hurried too and fro,
And how my unresolv'd resolves do vary !
I know not, where to fix, sometimes I go
This way, then that, and then the quite contrary :
I like, d dislike ; lament for what I could not ;
I do, undo ; yet still do what I would not.
And at the self same instant will the thing I would not.

Thus are my weather-beaten thoughts oppress'd
With th' earth-bred winds of my prodigious will ;
Thus am I hourly tost from East to West
Upon the rowling streams of good and ill :
Thus am I driven upon these slippery suds
From real ills to false apparent goods :
My life's a troubled sea, compos'd of ebs and floods.

The curious Penman, having trimm'd his page
With the dead language of his dabled quill,
Lets fall a heedless drop, then in a rage
Cashiers the fruits of his unlucky skill ;
Ev'n so my pregnant soul in th' Infant bud
Of her best thoughts shorws down a cole black flood
Of unadvised ills, and cancels all her good.

Sometimes a sudden flash of sacred heat
 Warms my chill soul, and sets my thoughts in frame;
 But soon that fire is shouldred from her seat
 By lustful Cupid's much inferiour flame.
 I feel two flames, and yet no flame entire;
 Thus are the mungrel thoughts of mixt desire,
 Consum'd between that heav'nly and this earthly fire.

Sometimes my trash disdaining thoughts out pass
 The common period of terrene conceit;
 O then, methinks I scorn the thing I was,
 Whilst I stand ravish'd at my new estate:
 But when th'Icarian wings of my desire
 Feel but the warmth of their own native fire,
 O then they melt and plunge within their wonted mire.

I know the nature of my wav'ring mind;
 I know the frailty of my fleshly will:
 My Passion's Eagle ey'd; my judgment blind;
 I know what's good, but yet make choice of ill.
 When th'Ostrich wings of my desires shall be
 So dull, they cannot mount the least degree,
 Yet grant my soul desire but of desiring thee.

S. BERN. Med. 9.

My heart is a vain heart, a vagabond and instable heart ; while it is led by its own judgment, and wanting Divine counsel cannot subsist in it self ; and whilst it divers ways seeketh rest. findeth none, but remaineth miserable through labour, and void of peace : it agreeth not with it self ; it dissenteth from it self ; it altereth resolutions, changeth the judgment, frameth new thoughts, pulleth down the old, and buildeth them up again : it willetb and willetb not ; and never remaineth in the same state.

S. AUGUST. de verb. Apoft.

When it would, it cannot ; because when it might, it would not : Therefore by an evil will man loseth his good power.

E P I G. I.

*My soul, how are thy thoughts disturb'd, confin'd,
Enlarg'd betwixt thy members and thy mind !
Fix here or there ; thy doubt depending cause
Can ne'r expect one verdict 'twixt two Laws.*

Oh that my wayes were directed to

II.

PSALM 119. 5.

O that my ways were directed to keep thy Statutes!

THUS I, the object of the worlds disdain,
With Pilgrim pace surround the weary earth :
I only relish what the world counts vain ;
Her mirth's my grief, her sullen grief my mirth ;
Her light my darkness ; and her truth my error :
Her freedom is my jail ; and her delight my terror.

Fond earth ! proportion not my seeming love
To my long stay ; let not thy thoughts deceive thee ;
Thou art my prison and my home's above ;
My life's a preparation but to leave thee :
Like one that seeks a door, I walk about thee :
With thee I cannot live ; I cannot live without thee.

The world's a lab'rinth, whose anfractuons ways
Are all compos'd of rubs and crook'd Meanders ;
No resting here ; He's hurried back that stays
A thought ; and he that goes unguided wanders :
Her way is dark, her path untrod, unev'n ;
So hard's the way from earth ; so hard's the way to Heaven.

This gyring lab'rinth is betrench'd about
On either hand with streams of sulph'rous fire,
Streams closely sliding, erring in and out,
But seeming pleasant to the fond descler ;
Where if his footsteps trust their own invention,
He falls without redress, and sinks without dimension.
Where

Where shall I seek a Guide? where shall I meet
 Some lucky hand to lead my trembling paces?
 What trusty Lanthorn will direct my feet
 To scape the danger of these dang'rous places?
 What hopes have I to pass without a Guide;
 Where one gets safely through, a thousand fall beside;

An unrequested Star did gently slide
 Before the Wise-men to a greater Light;
 Back sliding Isr'el found a double Guide;
 A Pillar, and a Cloud; by Day, by Night:
 Yet in my desp'rate dangers which be far
 More greater than theirs, I have no Pillar, Cloud, nor Star.

O that the pinions of a clipping Dove
 Would cut my passage through the empty Air;
 Mine eyes being seal'd, how would I mount above
 The reach of danger and forgotten care!
 My backward eyes should ne'r commit that fault,
 Whose lasting guilt should build a monument of Salt.

Great God that art the flowing Spring of Light,
 Enrich mine eyes with thy refulgent Ray;
 Thou art my Path; direct my steps aright;
 I have no other Light, no other Way:
 I'll trust my God, and him alone pursue;
 His Law shall be my Path; his Heavenly Light my Clue.

S. AUGUST.

S. AUGUST. Soliloqu. cap. 4.

O Lord ; who art the Light, the Way, the Truth, the Life ;
in whom there is no darkness, errour, vanity nor death : the Light, without which there is darkness ; the Way, without which there is wandring ; the truth, without which there is errour ; the life, without which there is death : Say, Lord, let there be light, and I shall see Light, and eschew darkness ;
I shall see the way, and avoid wandring ; I shall see the truth, and shun error ; I shall see Life, and escape Death : Illuminate, O illuminate my blind Soul, which sitteth in darkness, and the shadow of death ; and direct my feet in the way of peace.

EPIG. 2.

Pilgrim trudge on: what makes thy soul complain
Crowns thy complaint. The way to rest is pain :
The road to resolution lies by doubt :
The next way home's the farthest way about.

When e're the old Exchange of profit rings
Her silver Saints-bell of uncertain gains,
My Merchant-soul can stretch both legs and wings,
How I can run, and take unwearied pains!
The charms of profit are so strong, that I
Who wanted legs to go find wings to flie.

If time-beguiling Pleasure but advance
Her lustful trump, and blow her bold alarms,
O how my sportful soul can frisk and dance,
And hug that Syren in her twined arms!
The sprightly voice of sinew-strengthening pleasure
Can lend my bed-rid soul both legs and leisure.

If blazing honour chance to fill my veins
With flattering warmth, and flash of Courtly fire,
My soul can take a pleasure in her pains:
My lofty strutting steps disdain to tire;
My antick knees can turn upon the hinges
Of Complement, and scrue a thousand cringes.

But when I come to Thee, my God that art
The royal Mine of everlasting treasure,
The real honour of my better part,
And living fountain of eternal pleasure,
How nerveless are my limbs! how faint and slow!
I have no wings to flie nor legs to go.

So when the streams of swift-foot Rhene convey
Her upland riches to the Belgick shore,
The idle vessel slides the wat'ry lay,
Without the blast or tug, of wind, or oar;
Her slipp'ry keel divides the silver foame
With ease: So facile is the way from home.

But when the home bound vessel turns her sails
Against the breast of the resisting stream,
O then she flugs; nor sail, nor oar prevails;
The stream is sturdy, and her Tide's extream.
Each stroke is loss, and every tug is vain:
A Boat-lengths purchase is a league of pain.

Great all in all that art my rest, my home;
My way is tedious, and my steps are slow:
Reach forth thy helpful hand, or bid me come;
I am thy child, O teach thy child to go:
Conjoyn thy sweet commands to my desire,
And I will venture, though I fall or tire.

S. AUGUST. Ser. 15. de Verb. Apost.

Be always displeased at what thou art, if thou desirest to attain to what thou art not: For where thou hast pleased thyself, there thou abidest. But if thou sayest, I have enough, thou perishest: Always add, always walk, always proceed; neither stand still, nor go back, nor deviate: He that standeth still proceedeth not; He goeth back, that continueth not; He deviateth, that revolteth; He goeth better that creepeth in his way, then he that runneth out of his way.

EPIG. 3:

*Fear not, my Soul, to lose for want of cunning;
Weep not; Heav'n is not always got by running:
Thy thoughts are swift, although thy legs be slow;
True love will creep, not having strength to go.*

IV.

P S A L. 119. 120.

My flesh trembleth for fear of thee, and I am afraid of thy judgements.

L Et others boast of luck, and go their ways
With their fair game; know vengeance seldom plays
To be too forward, but doth wisely frame
Her backwark Tables for an after-game :
She gives thee leave to venture many a blot;
And, for her own advantage, hits thee not;
But when her pointed Tables are made fair,
That she be ready for thee, then beware;
Then, if a necessary blot be set,
She hits thee; wins the Game; perchance the set;
If prosp'rous chances make thy casting high,
Be wisely temp'rate; cast a serious eye
On after-dangers, and keep back thy game;
Too forward seed-times make thy harvest lame;
If left-hand Fortune give thee left-hand chances,
Be wisely patient; let not envious glances
Repine to view thy gamesters heap so fair;
The hindmost hound takes oft the doubling Hare.
The Worlds great Dice are false; sometimes they go
Extreamly high, sometimes extreamly low:
Of all her gamestres he that plays the least,
Lives most at ease, plays most secure and best:
The way to win, is to play fair, and swear
Thy self a servant to the Crown of fear:

Fear is the primmer of a Gamesters skill :
Who fears not Bad stands most unarm'd to Ill :
The Ill that's wisely fear'd, is half withstood ;
And fear of Bad is the best foyl to Good :
True Fear's th' Elixar, which in days of old
Turn'd Leaden Crosses into Crowns of Gold :
The Worlds the Tables ; Stakes, Eternal life ;
The Gamesters, Heav'n and I ; Unequal strife !
My Fortunes are my Dice, whereby I frame
My indisposed Life : This Life's the Game ;
My sins are sev'ral Blots ; the Lookers on
Are Angels ; and in death the Game is done :
Lord, I'm a Bungler, and my Game doth grow
Still more and more unshap'd ; my Dice run low :
The Stakes are great ; my careless Blots are many ;
And yet thou passest by, and hit'st not any :
Thou art too strong ; and I have none to guide me :
With the least jog ; the lookers on deride me :
It is a Conquest undeserving Thee,
To win a Stake from such a Worm as me :
I have no more to lose ; If we persevere,
'Tis lost ; and that once lost I'm lost for ever.
Lord, wink at faults, and be not too severe,
And I will play my Game with greater fear ;
O give me Fear, ere Fear has past her date :
Whose blot being hit, then fears, fears then too late.

S. BERN. Ser. 54. in Cant.

There is nothing so effectual to obtain Grace, to retain Grace, and to regain Grace, as always to be found before God not otherwise, but to fear: Happy art thou if thy heart be replenished with three fears; a fear for received Grace, a greater fear for lost Grace, a greatest fear to recover Grace.

S. AUGUST. super. Psal.

Present fear begetteth Eternal security: Fear God, which is above all, and no need to fear man at all.

How like the threds of flax
That touch the flame, are my inflam'd desires !
How like to yielding wax
My soul dissolve before these wanton fires !
The fire but touch'd, the flame but felt,
Like flax, I burn ; like wax, I melt.

O how this flesh doth draw
My fetter'd soul to that deceitful fire !
And how the eternal Law
Is baffled by the law of my desire !
How truly bad, how seeming good !
Are all the laws of flesh and blood !

O wretched state of men,
The height of whose ambition is to borrow
What must be paid again
With griping int'rest of the next days sorrow !
How wild his thoughts ! How apt to range !
How apt to vary ! Apt to change !

How intricate and nice
Is mans perplexed way to mans desire !
Sometimes upon the ice
He slips, and sometimes falls into the fire ;
His progress is extream and bold,
Or very hot, or very cold.

37

The common food he doth
Sustain his soul: tormenting thoughts withal,
Is honey in his mouth
To night, and in his heart, to morrow gall;
'Tis oftentimes, within an hour,
Both very sweet and very sowre,

If sweet Corinna smile,
A Heav'n of joy breaks down into his heart:
Corinna frown a while?
Hells torments are but copies of his smart:
Within a lustful heart doth dwell
A seeming Heav'n, a very Hell.

Thus worthless, vain, and void
Of comfort, are the fruits of earths employment;
Which 'ere they be enjoy'd
Distract us, and destroy us in th' enjoyment;
These be the pleasures that are priz'd,
When Heav'n's cheap pen'worth stands despis'd.

Lord, quench these hasty flashes,
Which dart as lightning from the thund'ring skies,
And ev'ry minute dashes
Against the wanton windows of mine eyes:
Lord, close the casement, whilst I stand
Behind the curtain of thy hand.

 The gentle audience of a gracious Lord:
 And let thy Royal Ester be possesst
 Of half thy Kingdom, at her dear request:
 Curb lustful Haman; him that would disgrace;
 Nay, ravish thy fair Queen before thy face:
 And as proud Haman was himself ensnar'd

 So nail my lust, both punishment and guilt,
 On that dear Cross that mine own lusts have built.

And like a block, beneath whose burthen lies
That undiscover'd worm that never dies
I have no will to rouse, I have no power to rise.

Can stinking Laz'rus compound or strive
With deaths entangling fetters, and revive ?
Or can the water-buried Axe implore
A hand to raise it, or it self restore,
And from her sandy deeps approach the dry-foot shore ?

So hard's the task for sinful flesh and blood
To lend the smallest step to what is good.
My God, I cannot move the least degree !
Ah ! If but only those that active be,
None should thy glory see, none should thy glory see.

But if the Potter please t'inform the clay :
Or some strong hand remove the block away :
Their lowly fortunes soon are mounted higher ;
That proves a vessel, which before was mire ;
And this being hewn, may serve for better use than fire.

And if that life-restoring voice command
 Dead Laz'rus forth ; or that great Prophets hand
 Should charm the fullen waters, and begin
 To becken, or to dart a stick but in,
 Dead Laz'rus must revive, and th' Ax must float again.

Lord, as I am, I have no pow'r at all
 To hear the voice or Echo to thy call ;
 The gloomy Clouds of mine own guilt benight me ;
 Thy glorious beams, not dainty sweets invite me ;
 They neither can direct ; nor these at all delight me.

See how my sin-bemangled body lies,
 Not having pow'r to will, nor will to rise !
 Shine home upon thy Creature, and inspire
 My lifeless Will with thy regen'rate fire ;
 The first degree to do, is only to desire.

Give me the power to Will, the Will to do ;
 O raise me up, and I will strive to go :
 Draw me, O draw me with thy trebble twift,
 That have no pow'r but meerly to resist ;
 O lend me strength to do, and then command thy list !

My Soul's a Clock, whose wheels (for want of use
 And winding up, being subject to the abuse
 Of eating rust) wants vigour to fulfil
 Her twelve hours task, and shew her makers skill,
 But idly sleeps unmov'd, and standeth vainly still.

Great God, it is thy work and therefore good.
 If thou be pleas'd to cleanse it with thy blood,
 And wind it up, with thy soul-moving keys,
 Her bristle wheels shall serve thee all her days ; (praise.
 Her hand shall point thy pow'r, her hammer stricke thy

S. BERN. Sermon. 21. in Cant.

Let us run, let us run, but in thy favour of thy Ointment, not in the confidence of our merits, nor in the greatness of our strength: We trust to run, but in the multitude of thy mercies, for though we run and are willing, it is not in him that willeth, nor in him that runneth, but in God that sheweth mercy. O let thy mercy return, and we will run: Thou like a Gyant, runnest by thy own power; we, unless thy Ointment breath upon us cannot run.

EPIG. 8.

Look not, my Watch, being once repair'd to stand
 Expecting motion from thy Maker's hand
 H'as wound thee up, and cleans'd thy Cogs with blood:
 If now thy wheels stand still thou art not good.

O that thou wert as my Brother, that Sucked the Breasts of my Mother. Cant: 8

IX.

CANTICLES 8. 1.

O that thou wert as my Brother, that sucked the breasts of my mother ; when I should find thee without, I would kiss thee.

Come, come, my blessed Infant, and immure thee
Within the temple of my sacred arms ;
Secure mine arms, mine arms shall then secure thee
From Herod's fury, or the High-Priests harms :
Or if thy danger'd life sustain a loss,
My folded arms shall turn thy dying cross.

But ah ; what savage Tyrant can behold
The beauty of so sweet a face, as this is,
And not himself be by himself controul'd,
And change his fury to a thousand kisses ?
One smile of thine is worth more Mines of treasure
Then there be Myriads in the days of Cæsar.

O, had the Tetrarch, as he knew by birth,
So known thy stock, he had not sought to paddle
In thy dear blood ; but prostrate on the earth
Had vail'd his Crown before thy Royal Cradle,
And laid the Scepter of his glory down,
And begg'd a Heavenly for an Earthly Crown.

Illustrious Babe ! How is thy handmaid grac'd
 With a rich armful ! How dost thou decline.
 Thy Majesty, that wert so late embrac'd
 In thy great Fathers arms, and now in mine !
 How humbly gracious art thou, to refresh
 Me with thy Sprit, and assume my flesh !

But must the treason of a traitour's Hail
 Abuse the sweetness of these ruby lips ?
 Shall marble hearted cruelty assail
 These Alabaster sides with knotted whips ?
 And must these smiling Roses entertain
 The blows of scorn, and flouts of base disdain ?

Ah ! Must these dainty little springs that twine
 So fast about thy neck, be pierc'd and torn
 With ragged nails ? And must these brows resign
 Their Crown of Glory for a Crown of thorn ?
 Ah, must the blessed infant taste the pain
 Of deaths injurious pangs ; nay worse, be slain ?

Sweet Babe ! At what dear rates do wretched I
 Commit a sin ! Lord, ev'ry sin's a dart ;
 And ev'ry trespass lets a javelin fle ;
 And ev'ry javelin wounds thy bleeding heart :
 Pardon sweet Babe, what I have done amiss ;
 And seal that granted pardon with a kiss.

BONAVENT. Soliloqu. Chap. 1.

O sweet Jezu, I knew that thy kisses were so sweet, nor thy society so delectable, nor thy attraction so virtuous: For when I love thee, I am clean; when I touch thee, I am chaste; when I receive thee I am a Virgin: O most sweet Jezu, thy embraces defile not, but cleanse; thy attraction pollute not, but sanctifieth: O Jezu the fountain of universal sweetness, pardon me that I believed so late, that so much sweetness is in thy embraces.

EPIG. 9.

My burthen's greatest: Let not Atlas boast:
 Impartial Reader, judge which bears the most:
 He bears but Heav'n, my folded arms sustain
 Heav'n's maker, whom Heav'n's Heav'n cannot contain.

X.

By night on my bed I sought him whom my
Soule loveth; I sought him but I found him not.
Cant: 3:1.

CANTICLES 3. 1.

*In my bed by night I sought him that my soul
loveth ; I sought him, but I found him not.*

THe learned Cynick having lost the way
To honest men, did in the height of day,
By Taper-light divide his steps about
The peopled streets to find this Dainty out ;
But fail'd: The Cynick search'd not where he ought ;
The thing he sought for, was not where he sought.
The Wise-mens task seem'd harder to be done,
The Wise-men did by Star-light seek the Sun,
And found: The Wise-men search'd it where they ought
The thing he hop'd to find was where they sought.
One seeks his wishes where he should ; but then
Perchance he seeks not as he should ; nor when.
Another searches when he should ; but there
He fails ; not seeking as he should, nor where.
Whose soul desires the good it wants, and would Obtain, must seek Where, As, and When he should.
How often have my wild affections led
My wasted soul to this my widow'd bed
To seek my lover, whom my soul desires ?
(I speak not, Cupid, of thy wanton fires :
Thy fires are all but dying sparks to mine ;
My flames are full of Heav'n, and all Divine)
How often have I sought this bed by night,
To find that greater by this lesser light !

How

How oft have my unwitnest groans lamented
Thy dearest absence ! Ah, how often vented
The bitter tempests of despairing breath,
And tost my soul upon the waves of death !
How often has my melting heart made choice
Of silent tears (tears louder than a voice)
To plead my grief, and woe thy absent ear !
And yet thou wilt not come, thou wilt not hear ;
O is thy wonted love become so cold ?
Or do mine eyes not seek thee where they should !
Why do I seek thee, if thou art not here ?
Or find thee not, if thou art ev'ry where ?
I see my errour, it is not strange I could not Find out my love : I sought him where I should not.
Thou art not found in downy beds of ease ;
Alas, thy musick strikes on harder keys :
Nor art thou found by that false feeble light
Of Natures candle, our Egyptian night
Is more than common darkness ; nor can we Expect a morning, but what breaks from thee.
Well may my empty bed bewail thy loss,
When thou art lodg'd upon thy shameful cross :
If thou refuse to share a bed with me,
We'll never part, I'll share a cross with thee.

ANSELM. in Protolog. 1.

Lord, if thou art not present, where shall I seek thee absent? If every where, why do I not see thee present? Thou dwellest in light inaccessible; and where is that inaccessible light? Or how shall I have access to light inaccessible? I beseech thee Lord, teach me to seek thee, and shew thy self to the seeker; because I can neither seek thee, unless thou teach me, nor find thee, unless thou shew thy self to me: Let me seek thee, in desiring thee, and desire thee in seeking thee; Let me find thee in loving thee, and love thee in finding thee.

EPIG. 10:

Where shouldst thou seek for rest, but in thy bed?
But now thy rest is gone, thy rest is fled:
'Tis vain to seek him there: My soul be wise;
Go ask thy sins; they'll tell thee, where he lies.

CANTICLES 3. 2.

*I will rise, and go about the City, and will seek him that my soul loveth: I sought

O How my disappointed soul's perplext !
How restless thoughts swarm in my troubled breast
How vainly pleas'd with hopes, then crossly vext
With fears ! And how betwixt them both distress !
What place is left unransack'd ? Oh, where next
Shall I go seek the Author of my rest ?
Of what blest'd Angel shall my lips enquire
The undiscover'd way to that entire
And everlasting solace of my hearts desire ?

Look how the stricken Heart that wounded flies
Ov'r hills and dales, and seeks the lower grounds
For running streams, the whilst his weeping eyes
Beg silent mercy from the following Hounds :
At length, embos'd, he droops, drops down, and lies
Beneath the burthen of his bleeding wounds :
Evn so my gasping soul, dissolv'd in tears,
Doth search for thee, my God, whose deafned ears
Leave me th'unransom'd Pris'ner to my panick fears.

Where have my busie eyes not pry'd ? O where,
Of whom hath not my thred-bare tongue demanded ?
I search'd this glorious City ; he's not here :
I sought the Country ; she stands empty handed ;
I search'd the Court ; he is a stranger there :
I ask'd the land ; he's shipp'd : the sea : he's landed :
I clim'd the air, my thoughts began t'aspire ;
But ah ! the wings of my too bold desire,
Soaring too near the Sun, were sing'd with sacred fire.

I mov'd the Merchant's ear ; alas, but he Knew, neither what I said, nor what to say :
I ask'd the Lawyer, he demands a fee,
And then demurs me with a vain delay :
I ask'd the Schoolman : his advice was free,
But scor'd me out too intricate a way :
I ask'd the Watch-man (best of all the four)
Whose gentle answer could resolve no more,
But that he lately left him at the Temple door.

Thus having sought, and made my great inquest
In ev'ry place, and search'd in ev'ry ear :
I threw me on my bed ; but ah ! my rest
Was poison'd with th'extremes of grief and fear,
Where looking down into my troubled breast,
The Magazine of wounds, I found him there :
Let others hunt, and shew their sportful Art ;
I wish to catch the Hare before she start,
As Potchers use to do ; Heav'n's Form's a troubled heart.

S. AMBROS. lib. 3. de Virg.

Christ is not in the market, nor in Streets: For Christ is Peace, in the market are strifes: Christ is Justice, in the market is iniquity: Christ is a Labourer, in the market is idleness: Christ is Charity, in the market is slander: Christ is Faith, in the market is fraud. Let us not therefore seek Christ, where we cannot find Christ.

S. HIEROM. Ser. 9. Ep. 22. ad Eustoch.

Jesus is jealous: He will not have thy face seen: Let foolish Virgins ramble abroad, seek thou thy Love at home.

EPIG. II.

What, lost thy love? will neither bed nor board
Receive him? Not by tears to be implor'd?
It is the Ship that moves, and not the Coast;
I fear, I fear, my soul, 'tis thou art lost.

WHat ſecret corner? What unwonted way
Has ſcap'd the ranſack of my rambling thought?
The Fox by night, nor the dull Owl by day,
Have never ſearch'd thoſe places I have ſought,
Whilſt they lamented, abſence taught my breaſt
The ready road to grief, without requeſt;
My day had neither comfort, nor my night had reſt.

How hath my unregarded language vented
The ſad tautologies of lavish paſſion;
How often have I languish'd unlamented!
How oft have I complain'd, without compaſſion!
I aſk'd the City-watch, but ſome deny'd me
The common ſtreet, whilſt others would miſguide me;
Some would debar me; ſome, divert me; ſome, deride me.

Mark how the Widow'd Turtle, having loſt
The faithful partner of her loyal heart,
Stretches her feeble wings from coaſt to coaſt,
Haunts ev'ry path; thinks every ſhade doth part
Her abſent Love, and her; at length unſped,
She re-betakes her to her lonely bed,
And there bewails her everlaſting Widow-head.

So when my soul had progreſſ ev'ry place,
 That love and dear affection could contrive,
 I threw me on my couch, reſolv'd t' embrace
 A death for him in whom I ceaſ'd to live :
 But there injurious Hyman did preſent
 His landſkip joys ; my pickled eyes did vent
 Full ſtreams of Briny tears , tears never to be ſpent.

O R I G. Hom. 10. in divers.

O most holy Lord ! and sweetest Master, how good art thou to those that are of upright heart, and humble spirit ! O how blessed are they that seek thee with a simple heart ! How happy that trust in thee ! It is a most certain truth, that thou lovest all that love thee, and never forsakest those that trust in thee : For behold thy Love simply sought thee, and undoubtedly found thee : She trusted in thee, and is not forsaken of thee, but hath obtained more by thee, than she expected from thee.

B E D A in cap. 3. Cant.

The longer I was in finding whom I sought, the more earnestly I held him being found.

E P I G. 12.

What ? found him out ? let strong embraces bind him ;
 He'll flie perchance, where tears can never find him.
 New sins will lose, what old repentance gains.
 Wisdom not only gets, but got retains.

It is good for me to draw neare to the Lord, I have put my trust in y^e Lord God.

XIII.

P S A L M. 72. 28.

It is good for me to draw near to God, I have put my trust in the Lord God.

WHere is that Good, which wise-men please to call
The chiefest? Doth there any such befall
Within mans reach? or is there such a Good at all?

If such there be, it neither must expire,
Nor change; than which there can be nothing higher;
Such good must be the utter point of man's desire.

It is the Mark, to which all hearts must tend;
Can be desired for no other end,
Than for it self, on which all other Goods depend.

What may this Excellent be? doth it subsist
A real Essence clouded in the midst
Of curious Art, or clear to ev'ry eye that list?

Or is't a tart Idea, to procure
An edg, and keep the practick soul in ure,
Like that dear Chymick dust, or puzzling Quadrature?

Where shall I seek this? Where shall I find
This Cath'lick pleasure, whose extremes may bind
My thoughts? and fill the gulf of my insatiate mind?

Lies it in Treasure? In full heaps untold?
Doth gowty Mammon's griping hand infold
This sacred Saint in sacred shrines of sov'reign gold?

No, no, she lies not there; wealth often sours
 In keeping; makes us hers, in seeming ours;
 She slides from Heav'n indeed, but not in Danae's showers.

Lives she in honour? no. The Royal Crown
 Builds up a creature, and then batters down:
 Kings raise thee with a smile, and raze thee with a frown.

In pleasure? no. Pleasure begins in rage;
 As the fools part on earth's uncertain stage;
 Begins the play in youth, and Epilogues in age.

These, these are bastard goods; the best of these Torment the soul with pleasing it, and please,
 Like water's gulp'd in feavers with deceitful ease.

Earth's flatt'ring dainties are but sweet distresses;
 Mole-hills perform the mountains she professes,
 Alas, can earth confer more good than earth possesses?

Mount, mount, my soul, and let my thoughts cashier
 Earth's vain delights, and make the full carier
 At Heav'n's eternal joys; stop, stop, thy Courser there.

There shall thy soul possess uncareful treasure,
 There shalt thou swim in never-fading pleasure:
 And blaze in honour far above the frowns of Cæsar.

Lord, if my hope dare let her anchor fall
 On thee, the chiefest Good, no need to call
 For earth's inferiour trash; Thou, thou art All in All.

S. AUGUST. Soliloqu. cap. 13.

I follow this thing : I pursue that, but am filled with nothing. But when I found thee, who art that immutable, individed, and only good in my self, what I obtained, I wanted not; for what I obtained not, I grieved not; with what I was possess, my whole desire was satisfied.

S. BERN. Ser. 9. sup. beati qui habent, &c.

CANTICLES 2. 3.

*I sat under his shadow with great delight,
and his fruit was sweet to my taste.*

Look how the sheep, whose rambling steps do stray
From the safe blessing of her Shepherds eyes,
Eftsoon becomes the unprotected prey
To the wing'd Squadron of beleagring flies ;
Where sweltered with the scorching beams of day,
She frisks from bush to brake, and wildly flies
From her own self, ev'n of her self afraid ;
She shrouds her troubled brows in ev'ry glade,
And craves the mercy of the soft removing shade.

Ev'n so my wandring soul, that hath digrest
From her great Shepherd, is the hourly prey
Of all my sins. These vultures in my breast
Gripe my Promethean heart both night and day ;
I hunt from place to place, but find no rest ;
I know not where to go, nor where to stay :
The eye of vengeance burns, her flames invade
My swelt'ring soul : My soul hath oft assaid,
Yet she can find no shroud, but can she feel no shade,

I sought the shades of Mirth, to wear away
 My slow pac'd hours of soul consuming grief;
 I search'd the shades of sleep, to ease my day
 Of griping sorrows with a nights reprieve.
 I sought the shades of death; thought there t'allay
 My final torments with a full relief:
 But mirth, nor sleep, nor death, can hide my hours
 In the false shades of their deceitful bours;
 The first distracts, the next disturbs, the last devours.

Where shall I turn? To whom shall I apply me?
 Are there no streams where a faint Soul may wade?
 Thy God-head, Jesus, are the flames that fry me;
 Hath thy All-glorious Deity never a shade,
 Where I may sit and vengeance never eye me,
 Where I might sit refresh'd or unafraid?
 Is there no comfort? Is there no refecti^on?
 Is there no cover that will give protection
 T'a fainting soul, the subject of thy wraths reflexion?

Look up, my soul, advance the lowly stature
 Of thy sad thoughts; advance thy humble eye:
 See, here's a shadow found: The humane nature
 Is made th'Umbella to the Deity,
 To catch the Sun-beams of thy just Creator:
 Beneath this covert thou maist safely lie:
 Permit thine eyes to climb this fruitful tree,
 As quick Zachew did, and thou shalt see
 A cloud of dying flesh betwixt those beams and thee.

GUIL. in cap. 2. Cant.

Who can endure the fierce rays of the Sun of Justice? Who shall not be consumed by his beams? Therefore the Sun of Justice took flesh, that through the conjunction of that Sun and this humane body a shadow may be made.

S. AUGUST. Med. cap. 37.

Lord, let my soul flee from the scorching thoughts of the world, under the covert of thy wings, that being refreshed by the moderation of thy shadow, she may sing merrily, In peace will I lay me down and rest.

EPIG. 14.

How shall we sing the song of the Lord in a strange Land .

XV.

PSALM. 137. 4.

How shall we sing a song of the Lord in a strange Land?

URge me no more : this airy mirth belongs
To better times : these times are not for songs.
The sprightly twang of the melodious Lute
Agrees not with my voice : and both unsute
My untun'd fortunes : the affected measure
Of strains, that are constrain'd, afford no pleasure.
Musick's the Child of Mirth ; where griefs assail
The Troubled soul, both voice, and fingers fail :
Let such as ravel out their lavish days,
In honourable riot ; that can raise
Dejected hearts, and conjure up a sp'rit
Of madness by the Magick of delight ;
Let those of Cupid's Hospital, that lie
Impatient Patients to a smiling eye,
That cannot rest, until vain hope beguile
Their flatter'd torment with a wanton smile :
Let such redeem their peace, and salve the wrongs,
Of froward Fortune with their frolick songs :
My grief, my grief's too great for smiling eyes
To cure, or counter-charms to exorcise.
The Ravens dismal croaks, the midnight howls
Of empty Wolves mixt with the screech of Owls,
The nine sad knolls of a dull passing Bell,
With the loud language of a nightly knell,

And

And horrid out-cries of revenged crimes,
Join'd in a medley's musick for these times ;
These are no times to touch the merry string
Of Orpheus ; no, these are no times to sing.
Can hide-bound Pris'ners, that have spent their souls,
And famish'd bodies in the noisome holes
Of hell black dungeons, apt their rougher throats,
Grown hoarse with begging alms, to warble notes ?
Can the sad Pilgrim, that hath lost his way
In the vast desert ; there condemn'd a prey
To the wild subject, or his savage King,
Rouze up his palse smitten spirits, and sing ?
Can I a Pilgrim, and a Pris'ner too,
(Alas) where I am neither known, nor know
Ought but my torments, an unransom'd stranger
In this strange climate, in a land of danger ?
O, can my voice be pleasant, or my hand,
Thus made a Pris'ner to a forein land ?
How can my musick relish in your ears,
That cannot speak for sobs, nor sing for tears ?
Ah, if my voice could, Orpheus-like, unspell
My poor Eurydice, my soul, from Hell
Of earth's misconstru'd Heaven, O then my breast
Should warble airs, whose rhapsodies should feast
The ears of Seraphims, and entertain
Heav'ns highest Deity with their lofty strain,
A strain well drench'd in the true Thespian Well,
Till then, earths Semiquaver, mirth, farewell.

S. AUGUST. Med. cap. 33.

O infinitely happy are those heavenly virtues which are able to praise thee in holiness and purity, with excessive sweetness, and inutterable exultation! From thence they praise thee, from whence they rejoice, because they continually see for what they rejoice, for what they praise thee: But we prest down with this burthen of flesh, far removed from thy countenance in this pilgrimage, and blown up with worldly vanities, cannot worthily praise thee: We praise thee by faith; not face to face: but those Angelical spirits praise thee face to face, and not by faith.

E P I G. 15.

Did I refuse to sing? said I these times
Were not for songs? nor musick for these climes?
It was my errour: are not groines and tears
Harmonious raptures in th'Almighty's ears?

CANTICLES 5. 8.

I charge you, O daughters of Jerusalem, if you find my beloved, that you tell him that I am sick of love.

YOU holy Virgins, that so oft surround
The City's Sapphire walls, whose snowy feet
Measure the pearly paths of sacred ground
And trace the new Jérus'lems Jasper street;
Ah, you whose care-forsaken hearts are crown'd
With your best wishes; that enjoy the sweet
Of all your hopes; If e're you chance to spie
My absent Love, O tell him that I lie
Deep wounded with the flames that furnac'd from his eye.

I charge you, Virgins, as you hope to hear
The heav'nly musick of your Love's voice;
I charge you by the solemn faith you bear
To plighted vows, and to that loyal choice
Of your affection, or, if ought more dear
You hold; by Hymen, by your marriage joys,
I charge you tell him, that a flaming dart,
Shot from his eye, hath pierc'd my bleeding heart;
And I am sick of love, and languish in my smart.

Tell him, O tell him, how my panting breast
 Is scorch'd with flames, and how my soul is pin'd ;
 Tell him, O tell him, how I lie oppress'd
 With the full torments of a troubled mind ;
 O tell him, tell him, that he loves in jest,
 But I in earnest ; tell him he's unkind :
 But if a discontented frown appears
 Upon his angry brow, accost his ears
 With soft and fewer words, and set the rest in tears.

O tell him, that his cruelties deprive
 My soul of peace, while peace in vain she seeks ;
 Tell him, those damask roses, that did strive
 With white, both fade, upon my fallow cheeks ;
 Tell him, no token doth proclaim I live,
 But tears, and sighs, and sobs, and sudden shrieks :
 Thus if your piercing words should chance to bore
 His hearkning ear, and move a sigh, give o'er
 To speak ; and tell him, Tell him, that I could no more.

If your elegious breath should hap to rouse
 A happy tear, close harb'ring in his eye,
 Then urge his plighted faith, the sacred vows,
 Which neither I can break, nor he deny ;
 Bewail the torments of his loyal spouse,
 That for his sake would make a sport to die :
 O blessed virgins, how my passion tires
 Beneath the burthen of her fond desires !
 Heav'n never shot such flames, earth never felt such fires !

S. AUGUST. Med. cap. 40.

self in him, and him in me.*

EPIG. 1.

*Grieve not (my soul) nor let thy love wax faint,
Weep'st thou to lose the cause of thy complaint?
He'll come; Love ne'r was bound to times nor laws:
Till then thy tears complain without a cause.*

Stay me with Flowers; Comfort mee with Apples, for I am sick of lone Cant: 2. 5.

II.

CANTICLES 2. 5.

Stay me with flowers, and comfort me with apples, for I am sick with love.

I

O Tyrant love! how doth thy sov'reign pow'r
 Subject poor souls to thy imperious thrall!
 They say, thy cup's compos'd of sweet and sower;
 They say, thy diet's honey mixt with gall;
 How comes it then to pass, these lips of ours
 Still trade in bitter; tast no sweet at all?
 O tyrant love! Shall our perpetual toil,
 Ne'r find a Sabbath to refresh a while
 Our drooping souls? Art thou all frowns, and ne'r a smile?

You blessed Maids of honour that frequent
 The royal courts of our renown'd sehove,
 With flow'rs restore my spirits faint and spent;
 O fetch me apples from Loves fruitful grove,
 To cool my palate, and renew my scent,
 For I am sick, for I am sick of love:
 These will revive my dry, my wasted pow'rs,
 And they will sweeten my unsav'ry hours;
 Refresh me then with fruit, and comfort me with flow'rs.

O bring me apples to assuage that fire,
 Which Ætna-like inflames my flaming breast;
 Nor is it every apple I desire,
 Nor that which pleases every palate best:
 'Tis not the lasting Deuzan I require,
 Not yet the red-cheek'd Queening I request:
 Nor that which first bestrew'd the name of wife,
 Nor that whose beauty caus'd the golden strife;
 No, no, bring me an apple from the tree of life.

Virgins, tuck up your silken laps, and fill ye
 With the fair wealth of Flora's Magazine;
 The purple violet and the pale-fac'd lilly:
 The pancy and the organ colombine;
 The flowering thyme, the guilt-bowl daffadilly;
 The lowly pink, the lofty eglantine:
 The blushing rose, the queen of flowers, and best
 Of Flora's beauty; but above the rest,
 Let Jess's sovereign flower perfume my qualming breast.

Hast, Virgins, hast, for I lie weak and faint,
 Beneath the pangs of love; why stand ye mute,
 As if your silence neither car'd to grant;
 Nor yet your language to deny my suit;
 No key can lock the door of my complaint,
 Until I smell this flower, or tast that fruit;
 Go, Virgins, seek this tree, and search that bow'r;
 O, how my soul shall bless that happy hour,
 That brings to me such fruit, that brings me such a flower.

GISTEN. in cap. 2. Cant. Expof. 3.

O happy sickness, where the infirmity is not to death, but to life, that God may be glorified by it ! O Happy feaver, that proceedeth not from a consuming, but a calcining fire ! O Happy distemper, wherein the soul relishest no earthly things, but only savoureth divine nourishment !

S. BERN. Serm. 51. in Cant.

By flowers understand faith ; by fruit, good works : As the flower or blossom is before the fruit, so is faith before good works : So neither is the fruit without the flower, nor good works without faith.

EPIG. 2.

Why apples, O my soul ? Can they remove,
The pains of grief, or ease the flames of love ?
It was that fruit which gave the first offence ;
That sent him hither ; that remov'd him hence.

CANTICLES 2. 16.

My beloved is mine, and I am his ; He feedeth among the lillies.

EV'n like two little bank-dividing brooks,
That wash the pebbles with their wanton streams,
And having rang'd and search'd a thousand nooks,
Meet both at length in silver-breasted Thames,
Where in a greater current they conjoyn :
So I my best beloveds am ; so he is mine.

Ev'n so we met ; and after long pursuit,
Ev'n so we joyn'd we both became entire ;
No need for either to renew a suit,
For I was flax and he was flames of fire :
Our firm united souls did more than twine ;
So I my best-beloveds am ; so he is mine.

If all those glitt'ring Monarchs that command
The servile quarters of this earthly ball,
Should tender, in exchange, their shares of land,
I would not change my fortunes for them all ;
Their wealth is but a counter to my coyn ;
The world's but theirs ; but my beloved's mine.

Nay more; if the fair Thespain Ladies all
 Should heap together their diviner treasure :
 That treasure should be deem'd a price too small
 To buy a minutes lease of half my pleasure ;
 'Tis not the sacred wealth of all the nine
 Can buy my heart from him, or his, from being mine.

Nor Time, nor Place, nor Chance, nor Death can bow
 My least desires unto the least remove ;
 He's firmly mine by oath ; I his by vow ;
 He's mine by faith ; and I am his by love ;
 He's mine by water ; I am his by wind ;
 Thus I my best-beloveds am ; thus he is mine.

He is mine Altar ; I, his holy Place ;
 I am his guest ; and he, my living food ;
 I'm his by penitence ; he mine by grace ;
 I'm his by purchase ; he is mine by blood ;
 He's my supporting elm ; and I his vine ;
 Thus I my best-beloveds am ; thus he is mine.

He gives me wealth, I give him all my vows :
 I give him songs ; he gives me length of days :
 With wreaths of grace he crowns my conqu'ring brows :
 And I his Temples with a crown of Praise,
 Which he accepts an ev'lasting sign,
 That I my best beloveds am ; that he is mine.

S. AUGUST. Manu. cap. 24.

O my soul stamp with the image of thy God, love him of whom thou art so much beloved: And to him that boweth to thee, seek him that seeketh thee: Love the lover, by whose love thou art prevented, begin the cause of thy love: Be careful with those that are careful, want with those that want; be clean with the clean, and holy with the holy: Choose this friend above all friends, who when all are taken away, remaineth only faithful to thee: In the day of thy burial, when all leave thee, he will not deceive thee, but defend thee from the roaring Lions prepared for their prey.

EPIG. 3.

Sing, Hymen, to my soul: What? lost and found?
 Welcom'd, espous'd, enjoy'd so soon, and crown'd!
 He did but climb the Cross, and then come down
 To th' gates of hell; triumph'd and fetch'd a Crown.

IV.

CANTICLES 7. 10.

I am my Beloveds, and his desire is towards me.

Like to the Attick needle, that doth guide
The wandring shade by his magnetick pow'r,
And leaves his filken Gnomon to decide
The question of the controverted hour,
First franticks up and down, from side to side
And restless beats his crystal'd Iv'ry case,
With vain impatience ; jets from place to place,
And seeks the bosome of his frozen bride,
At length he slackes his motion, and doth rest
His trembling point at his bright Poles beloved breast.

Ev'n so my soul, being hurried here and there,
By ev'ry object that presents delight,
Fain would be settled, but she knows not where ;
She likes at morning what she loaths at night :
She bows to honour ; then she lends an ear
To that sweet swan-like voice of dying pleasure,
Then tumbles in the scatter'd heaps of treasure ;
Now flatter'd with false hope ; now foyl'd with fear :
Thus finding all the worlds delight to be
But empty toys, good God, she points alone to thee.

But

But hath the virtued steel a power to move ?
 Or can the untouch'd needle point aright ;
 Or can my wandering thoughts forbear to rove,
 Unguided by the vertue of thy sp'rit ?
 O hath my leaden soul the art t' improve
 Her wasted talent, and unras'd, aspire
 In this sad moulting time of her desire ?
 Not first belov'd have I the power to love ;
 I cannot stir, but as thou please to move me,
 Nor can my heart return thee love, until thou love me.

The still commandress of the silent night
 Borrows her beams from her bright brothers eye ;
 His fair aspect fills her sharp horns with light,
 If he withdraw her flames are quench'd and die :
 Ev'n so the beams of her enlightning sp'rit
 Infus'd and shot into my dark desire,
 In flame my thoughts, and fill my soul with fire,
 That I am ravish'd with a new delight ;
 But if thou shroud thy face, my glory fades,
 And I remain a Nothing, all compos'd of shades.

Eternal God ! O thou that only art
 The sacred Fountain of eternal light,
 And blessed Load-stone of my better part,
 O thou my hearts desire, my souls delight,
 Reflect my soul, and touch my heart,
 And then my heart shall prize no good above thee ;
 And then my soul shall know thee; knowing, love thee;
 And then my trembling thoughts shall never start
 From thy commands, or swerve the least degree,
 Or once presume to move, but as they move in thee.

S. AUGUST.

S. AUGUST. Med. cap. 25.

If Man can love man with so entire affection, that the one can scarce brook the others absence? if a bride can be joynd to her bride-groom with so great an ardency of mind, that for the extremity of love she can enjoy no rest, not suffering his absence without great anxiety, with what affection, with what fervency ought the soul whom thou hast espoused by faith and comp'ssion, to love thee her true God, and glorious bridegroom?

EPIG. 4.

My soul, thy love is dear: 'Twas thought a good
And easie pen'worth of thy Saviours blood:
But be not proud; All matters rightly I cann'd,
'Twas over-bought: 'Twas sold at second hand.

My Soule melted, when my beloved spoke. Cant. 5. 6. 264

V.

CANTICLES 5. 6.

My Soul melted whil'st my Beloved spake.

Ord, has the feeble voice of flesh and blood
 The power to work thine ears into a flood
 Of melted mercy? or the strength t'unlock
 The gates of Heav'n, and to dissolve a rock
 Of marble-clouds into a morning show'r?
 Or hath the breath of whining dust the pow'r
 To stop or snatch a falling Thunder-bolt
 From thy fierce hand; and make thy hand revolt
 From resolute confusion, and instead
 Of viols, pour full blessings on our head?
 Or shall the wants of famish'd Ravens cry,
 And move thy mercy to a quick supply?
 Or shall the silent suits of drooping flow'rs
 Woo thee for drops, and be refresh'd with show'rs?
 Or, what marvel then, great God, what wonder
 Thy hell-rouzing voice, that splits in sunder
 The brazen portals of eternal death;
 That number if that life-restoring breath
 Which dragg'd me from the infernal shades of night,
 Could melt my ravish'd soul with o'er-delight?
 Can my frozen gutters choose but run,
 That feel the warmth of such a glorious Sun?
 Or thinks his language like a flaming arrow
 To pierce my bones, and melts their wounded marrow.

Thy flames, O Cupid (though the joyful heart
Feels neither tang of grief, nor fears the smart
Of jealous doubts, but drunk with full desires)
Are torments, weigh'd with these celestial fires;
Pleasures that ravish in so high a measure,
That O I languish in excess of pleasure:
What ravish'd heart, that feels these melting joys;
Would not despise and loath the treach'rous toys
Of dunghil earth? What soul would not be proud
Of wry-mouth'd scorns, the worst that flesh and blood
Had rancor to devise? Who would not bear
The world's derision with a thankful ear?
What palat would refuse full bowls of spight,
To gain a minutes taste of such delight?
Great spring of light, in whom there is no shade
But what my interposed sins have made.
Whose narrow melting fires admit no screen
But what my own rebellions put between
Their precious flames and my obdurate ear?
Disperse this plague distilling clouds, and clear
My mungy soul into a glorious day;
Transplant this screen, remove this bar away;
Then, then my fluent soul shall feel the fires
Of thy sweet voice, and my dissolv'd desires
Shall turn a sov'reign balsome, to make whole
Those wounds my sins inflicted on thy soul.

S. AUGUST. Soliloq. cap. 34.

What fire is this that so warmeth my heart ? What light is this that so enlighteneth my soul ? O fire, that always burneth, and never goes out, kindle me : O light, which ever shinest, and art never darkned, illuminate me : O that I had my heart from thee, most holy fire ! How sweetly dost thou burn ? How secretly dost thou shine ? How desiredly dost thou inflame me ?

BONAVENT. Stim. amoris, cap. 8.

It maketh God man, and man God ; things temporal, eternal ; mortal, immortal ; it maketh an enemy, a friend ; a servant, a son ; vile things, glorious ; cold hearts, fiery ; and hard things, liquid.

P S A L M 73. 25.

Whom have I in Heaven but thee? and what desire I on earth in respect of thee?

I Love (and have some cause to love :) the earth:
She is my Makers creature; therefore good:
She is my Mother, for she gave me birth;
She is my tender Nurse; she gives me food;
But what's a Creature, Lord compar'd with thee?
Or what's my Mother, or my Nurse to me?

I love the Air: her dainty sweets refresh
My drooping soul, and to new sweets invite me;
Her shrill-mouth'd quire sustain me with their flesh,
And with their Polyphonian notes delight me:
But what's the Air, or all the sweets, that she
Can bless my soul withal, compar'd to thee?

I love the Sea: She is my fellow-Creature,
My careful porveyour; she provides me store:
She walls me round; she makes my diet greater;
She wafts my treasure from a forreign shore:
But Lord of Oceans, when compar'd with thee,
What is the Ocean, or her wealth to me,

To heav'n's high city I direct my journey,
 Whose spangled suburbs entertain mine eye;
 Mine eye, by contemplations great Attorney,
 Transcends the crystal pavement of the skie:
 But what is Heav'n, great God compar'd to Thee?
 Without thy presence Heav'n's no Heav'n to me.

Without thy presence Earth gives no refection;
 Without thy presence Sea affords no treasure;
 Without thy presence Air's a rank infection;
 Without thy presence Heav'n it self's no pleasure;
 If not possess'd, if not enjoy'd in thee,
 What's Earth, or Sea, or Air, or Heav'n to me?

The highest honour, that the world can boast,
 Are subjects far too low for my desire;
 The brightest beams of glory are (at most)
 But dying sparkles of thy living fire:
 The proudest flames that earth can kindle, be
 But nightly Glow-worms if compar'd to thee.

Without thy presence, Wealth are bags of cares;
 Wisdom, but folly; Joy, disquiet sadness;
 Friendship is treason, and Delights are snares;
 Pleasures but pain, and Mirth but pleasing madness:
 Without thee, Lord, things be not what they be,
 Nor have their being, When compar'd with thee.

In having all things, and not thee, what have I?
 Not having thee, what have my labours got?
 Let me enjoy but thee, what farther crave I?
 And having thee alone, what have I not?
 I wish nor Sea, nor Land; nor would I be Possess'd of Heav'n, Heav'n unpossess'd of thee.

BONAVENT, Solioqu. Cap. 1.

Alas ! My God, now I understand (but blush to confess) that the beauty of thy Creatures hath deceived mine eyes, and I have not observed that thou art more amiable then all the Creatures; to which thou hast communicated but one drop of thy inestimable beauty: For who hath adorned the Heavens with stars? Who hath stored the air with fowl, the waters with fish, the earth with plants and flowers? But what are all these but a small spark of divine beauty.

S. CHRYS. Hom. 5. in Ep. ad Rom.

In having nothing I have all things, because I have Christ Having therefore all things in him, I seek no other rewards for he is the universal reward.

Woe isto me, that I remain in Mesheck, and dwell in the tents of Kedar !

IS Natures course dissolv'd ? doth times glafs stand ?
 Or hath some frolick heart set back the hand
 Of Fates perpetual Clock ? Will'r never strike ?
 Is crazy Time grown lazy, faint or sick,
 With very Age ? Or hath that great Pair-royal
 Of Adamantine sisters late made trial
 Of some new trade ? Shall mortal hearts grow old
 In sorrow ? Shall my weary arms infold,
 And underprop my panting sides for ever ?
 Is there no charitable hand will sever
 My well-sprung thred, that my imprison'd soul
 May be deliver'd from this dull dark hole
 Of dungeon flesh ? O shall I, shall I never
 Be ransom'd, but remain a slave for ever ?
 It is the lot of man but once to die,
 But e're that death, how many deaths have I ?
 What human madness makes the world afraid
 To entertain heav'n's joys, because convey'd
 By th' hand of death ? Will nakedness refuse
 Rich change of Robes, because the man's not spruce
 That brought them ? Or will poverty send back
 Full bags of gold, because the bringers black ?
 Life is a bubble, blowa with whining breaths,
 Fill'd with the torment of a thousand deaths ;

Which being prick'd by death (while death deprives
One life) presents the soul a thousand lives :
O frantick mortal, how hath earth bewitch'd
Thy bedlam soul, which hath so fondly pitch'd
Upon her false delights ! Delights that cease
Before enjoyments finds a time to please :
Her fickle joys breed doubtful fears ; her fears
Bring hopeful griefs ; her griefs weep fearful tears !
Tears coyne deceitful hopes ; hopes careful doubt,
And surly passion juffles passion out :
To day we pamper with a full repast
Of lavish mirth, at night we weep as fast :
To night we swim in wealth, and lend ; to morrow,
We sink in want, and find no friend to borrow,
In what a climate doth my soul reside ?
Where palefac'd murther, the first born of pride,
Sets up her kingdom in the very smiles.
And plighted faiths of men like Crocodiles !
A land, where each embroyd'ed sattin word
Is lin'd with fraud ; where Mars his lawless sword
Exiles Astræa's balance ; where that hand
Now slayes his brother, that new sow'd his land ;
O that my days of bondage would expire
In this lewd soyl ! Lord, how my soul's on fire
To be dissolv'd, that I might once obtain
These long'd for joyes, long'd for so oft in vain !
If Moses like I may not live posselt
Of his fair land ; Lord, let me see't at least.

S. AUGUST. Soliloqu. cap. 12.

My life is a frail life ; a corruptible life ; a life, which the more it increaseth, the more it decreaseth : The farther it goeth, the nearer it cometh to death. A deceitful life, and like a shadow full of the snares of death : Now I rejoyce, now I languish, now I flourish, now infirm, now I live, and straight I die ; now I seem happy, always miserable ; now I laugh, now I weep : Thus all things are subje:ct to mutability, that nothing continueth an hour in one estate : O joy above joy, exceeding all joy without which there is no joy, when shall I enter into thee, that I may see my God that dwelleth in thee ?

EPIG. 7.

O wretched Man that I am who shall sever me from the body of this death

VIII.

R O M. 7. 24.

O wretched man that I am ! who shall deliver me from the body of this death ?

BEhold thy darling, which thy lustful care
Pampers, for which thy restless thoughts prepare
Such early cares ; for whom thy bubbling brow
So often sweats, and bankrupt eyes do owe
Such midnight scores to nature, for whose sake
Base earth is fainted, the infernal lake
Unfear'd, the Crown of glory poorly rated :
Thy God neglected, and thy Brother hated ;
Behold thy darling, whom thy soul affects
So dearly ; whom thy fond indulgence decks
And puppets up in soft, in silken weeds :
Behold the darling, whom thy fondness feeds
With far-fetch'd delicates, the dear bought gains
Of ill-spent time, the price of half my pains :
Behold thy darling, who, when clad by thee,
Derides thy nakedness ; and when most free,
Proclaims her lover slave ; and being fed
Most full, then strikes th' indulgent feeder dead,
What means thou thus, my poor deluded soul,
To love so fondly ? Can the burning coal
Of thy affection last without the fuel
Of counter-love ? Is thy compeer so cruel,
And thou so kind, to love unlov'd again ?
Canst thou sow favours, and thus reap disdain ?

Remember,

Remember, O remember, thou art born
Of royal blood ; remember thou art sworn
A Maid of Honour in the Court of Heaven ;
Remember what a costly price was given
To ransom thee from slav'ry thou wert in :
And wilt thou now, my soul, turn slave again ?
The Son and Heir to Heav'n's Tri-une J E H O V E
Would fain become a suter for thy love,
And offers for thy dow'r his fathers Throne,
To sit for Seraphims to gaze upon ;
He'l give thee Honour, Pleasure, Wealth, and Things
Transcending far the Majesty of Kings :
And wilt thou prostrate to the odious charms
Of this base scullion ? Shall his hollow arms
Hug thy soft sides ? Shall these coarse hands untie
The sacred Zone of thy virginity ?
For shame degen'rous soul, let thy desire
Be quickned up with more heroick fire ;
Be wisely proud, let thy ambitious eye
Read nobler objects ; let thy thoughts desire
Such am'rous baseness ; let thy soul disdain
Th' noble profers of so base a swain ;
Or if thy vows be past, and Hymans bands
Have ceremonied your unequal hands,
Annul, at least avoid, thy lawless act
With insufficiency, or precontract :
Or if the act be good, yet maist thou plead
A second freedom ; or the flesh is dead.

NAZIANZ. Orat. 16.

How I am joyn'd to this body I know not; which when it is healthful, provoketh me to war, and being damaged by war, affecteth me with grief; which I both love as a fellow servant, and hate as an utter enemy: It is a pleasant foe, and a perfidious friend. O strange conjunction and alienation: What I fear I embrace, and what I love I am afraid of? before I make war, I am reconciled; before I enjoy peace I am at variance.

E P I G. 8.

PHILIPPIANS I. 23.

I am in a straight between two: having a desire to be dissolved, and to be with Christ.

I

WHat meant our careful parents so to wear,
And lavish out their ill extended hours,
To purchase for us large possessions here,
Which (though unpurchas'd) are too truly ours?
What meant they, ah, what meant they to endure
Such loads of needless labour to procure
And make that thing our own, which was our own too sure.

What mean these liv'ries and possessive keyes?
What mean these bargains, and these needless sales?
What need these jealous, these suspicious ways
Of law-devis'd, and law-dissolv'd entails?
No need to sweat for gold, wherewith to buy
Estates of high-priz'd land; no need to tie
Earth to their heirs, were they but clogg'd with earth, as I.

O were their souls but clogg'd with earth, as I,
They would not purchase with so salt an itch;
They would not take of alms, what now they buy?
Nor call him happy, whom the world counts rich;
They would not take such pains, project and prog,
To charge their shoulders with so great a log:
Who hath the greater lands, hath but the greater clog.

I cannot do an act which earth disdains ;

I cannot think a thought which earth corrupts not ;

I cannot speak a word which earth profanes not

I cannot make a vow earth interprets not :

If I but offer up an early groan,

Or spread my wings to Heav'ns long-long'd for throne

She darkens my complaints, and draggs my offering down.

Ev'n like the hawk, (whose keepers wary hands

Have made a pris'ner to her wethring flock)

Forgetting quite the pow'r of her fast bands,

Makes a rank bate from her forsaken block,

But her to faithful leash doth soon retain

Her broken flight, attempted oft in vain ;

It gives her loins a twitch, and tuggs her back again.

So, when my soul directs her better eye

To Heav'ns bright Palace (where my treasure lies)

I spread my willing wings, but cannot flie,

Earth hales me down, I cannot, cannot rise :

When I but strive to mount the least degree,

Earth gives a jerk, and foils me on my knee ;

Lord, how my soul is rack'd betwixt the world and thee :

Great God, I spread my feeble wings in vain ;

In vain I offer my extended hands :

I cannot mount till thou unlink my chain :

I cannot come till thou release my bands :

Which if thou please to break, and then supply

My wings with spirit, th' Eagle shall not flie

A pitch that's half so fair, nor half so swift as I.

BONAVENT. Soliloq. Cap. 1.

Ab sweet Jesus, pierce the marrow of my soul with the healthful shafts of thy love, that it may truly burn and melt and languish with the only desire of thee; that it may desire to be dissolved, and to be with thee: Let it hunger alone for the bread of life: Let it thirst after thee, the spring and fountain of eternal light, the stream of true pleasure: let it always, desire thee, seek thee, and find thee, and sweetly rest in thee.

EPIG. 4.

What? will thy shackles neither loose nor break,
Are they too strong, or is thy arm too weak?
Art will prevail where knotty strength denies;
My soul, there's Aqua fortis in thine eyes.

Bring my soule out of Prison that I may
Praise thy Name Ps: 14 2.7.

F. H. Van. Hove. Sculp.

X.

P S A L M. 142. 7.

Bring my soul out of prison, that I may praise thy Name.

MY Soul is like a Bird, my flesh the cage,
Wherein she wears her weary pilgrimage
Of hours, as few as evil, daily fed
With sacred Wine, and Sacramental Bread ;
The keyes that lock her in, and let her out,
Are Birth and Death ; 'twixt both she hops about
From perch to perch, from sense to reason ; then
From higher reason down to sense again :
From sense she climbs to Faith ; where for a season
She sits and sings ; then down again to reason :
From reason back to faith, and streight from thence
She rudely flutters to the perch of sense :
From sense to hope ; then hops from hope to doubt,
From doubt, to to dull despair ; there seeks about
For desp'rate freedom, and at ev'ry grate,
She wildly thrusts, and begs th' untimely date
Of the unexpired thraldom, to release
Th' afflicted captive, that can find no peace.
Thus am I coop'd within this fleshly cage
I wear my youth, and waist my weary age,
Spending that breath which was ordain'd to chaunt
Heav'n's praises forth, in sighs, and sad complaint :
Whilst happier birds can spread their nimble wing
From shrubs to Cedars, and there chirp and sing,

In choice of raptures, harmonious story
Of mans Redemption, and his Makers glory :
You glorious Martyrs, you illustrious sloop,
That once were cloyster'd in your fleshy coops,
As fast as I, what rhet'rick had your tongues?
What dextrous Art had your Elegiac songs?
What Paul-like pow'r had your admir'd devotion
What shackle, breaking faith infus'd such motion
To your strong prayer, that could obtain the boon
To be enlarg'd ; to be uncag'd so soon ?
What I, poor I, can sing my daily tears,
Grown old in bondage, and can find no ears :
You great partakers of eternal glory,
That with your Heav'n-prevailing Oratory,
Releas'd your souls from your terrestrial cage,
Permit the passion of my holy rage
To recommend my sorrows, dearly known
To you, in days of old, and once your own,
To your best thoughts, (but oh't doth not besit ye
To move your pray'rs ; you love joy, not pittie :)
Great Lord of souls to whom should pris'ners flie,
But thee ? Thou hast a cage as well as I ;
And for my sake, thy pleasure was to know
The sorrows that it brought, and felt'st them too ;
O set me free and I will spend those days,
Which now I waste in begging, in thy praise.

ANSELM. in Protolog. cap. 1.

O miserable condition of mankind, that has lost that for which he was created! Alas, what hath he lost? And what hath he found? He hath lost happiness for which he was made, and found misery for which he was not made: What is gone? And what is left? That thing is gone, without which he is unhappy? That thing is left by which he is miserable: O wretched men! From whence are we expelled? To what are we impelled? Whence are we thrown? And whither are we hurried? From our home into banishment; from the sight of God into our own blindness; from the pleasure of immortality to the bitterness of death: Miserable charge! From how great a good, to how great an evil? Ah me, what have I enterprised? What have I done? Whether did I go? Whether am I come?

*As the Heart panteth after the water-brooks,

HOW shall my tongue express that hallow'd fire
Which Heav'n hath kindled in my ravish'd heart?
What Muse shall I invoke, that will inspire
My lowly quill to act a lofty part!
What Art shall I devise t' express desire,
Too intricate to be express'd by Art!
Let all the Nine be silent; I refuse
Their aid in this high task, for they abuse
The flames of love too much: Assist me, Dauids Muse:

Not as the thirsty soil desires soft show'rs
To quicken and refresh her Embrion grain;
Nor as the drooping crests of fading flow'rs
Requests the bounty of a morning rain,
Do I desire my God: These in few hours,
Re-wish what late their wishes did obtain,
But as the swift-foot Hart doth wounded flie
To th' much desired streams, even so do I
Pant after thee, my God, whom I must find, or die.

Before

Before a pack of deep-mouth'd lusts I flee;
O, they have singled out my panting heart,
And wanton Cupid, sitting in a tree,
Hath pierc'd my bosome with a flaming dart;
My soul being spent, for refuge seeks to thee,
But cannot find where thou my refuge art:
Like as the swift-foot Hart doth wounded flie
To the desired streams, ev'n so do I
Pant after thee, my God, whom I must find, or die.

At length by flight, I over-went the pack;
Thou drew'st the wanton dart from out my wound
The blood that follow'd, left a purple track,
Which brought a Serpent, but in shape a Hound;
We strove, he bit me; but thou break'st his back,
I left him grov'ling on th' envenom'd ground;
But as the Serpent-bitten Hart doth flie
To the long-long'd for streams, ev'n so did I
Pant after thee, my God, whom I must find, or die.

If Lust should chase my soul, made swift by fright,
Thou art the stream, whereto my soul is bound:
Or if a Jav'lin wound my sides in flight,
Thou art the Balsom that must cure my wound:
If poyson chance t' infest my soul in fight,
Thou art the Treacle that must make me sound:
Ev'n as the wounded Hart, embost, doth flie
To th' streams extreamly long'd for, so do I.
Pant after thee, my God, whom I must find, or die.

CYRIL. lib. 5. in Joh. cap. 10.

O precious water, which quencketh the noysome thirst of this world, scoureth all the stains of sinners, that watereth the earth of our souls with heavenly showers, and bringeth back the thirsty heart of man to his only God!

S. AUGUST. Soliloq. 35.

O fountain of life, and vein of living waters, when shall I leave this forsaken, impassible, and dry earth, and taste the waters of thy sweetness, that I may behold thy virtue and thy glory, and slack my thirst with the streams of thy mercy; Lord, I thirst: Thou art the spring of life, satisfy me; I thirst Lord, I thirst after thee the living God!

When shall I come and appeare before the Lord. Ps: 42: 2.

XII.

P S A L M 42. 2.

When shall I come and appear before God :

WHat is my soul the better to be tin'd
With holy fire ? What boots it to be coy'd
With Heavens own stamp ? What vantage can there be
To souls of Heav'n-defended pedigree,
More, then to beast that grovel ? Are not they Fed by th' Almighty's hand ? And ev'ry day,
Fill'd with his blessings too ? Do they not see
God in his Creatures, as direct as we ?
Do they not taste thee ? Hear thee ? Nay, what sense
Is not partaker of thine Excellence ?
What more do we ? Alas, what serves our reason,
But, like dark-lanterns, to accomplish treason
With greater closeness ? It affords no light,
Brings thee no nearer to our pur-blinc sight :
No pleasure rises up thee least degree,
Great God, but in the clearer-view of thee :
What priv'ledge more then sense hath reason then ?
What vantage is it to be born, a man ?
How often hath my patience built, dear Lord,
Vain towers of hope upon thy gracious Word ?
How often hath thy Hope-reviving Grace
Woo'd my suspicious eyes to seek thy face ?
How often have I sought thee ? O how long
Hath expectation taught my perfect tongue
Repeated pray'rs, yet pray'rs could-ne'r obtain ;
In vain I seek thee, and I beg in vain ;

If it be high presumption to behold
Thy face, why didst thou make mine eyes so bold
To seek it? If that object, be too bright
For mans aspect, why did thy lips invite
Mine eye t' expect it? If it might be seen,
Why is this envious curtain drawn between
My darkned eye and it? O tell me, why
Thou dost command the thing thou dost deny;
Why dost thou give me so unpriz'd a treasure.
And then deny't my greedy soul the pleasure
To view my gift: Alas, that gift is void,
And is no gift, that may not be enjoy'd:
If those refulgent beams of Heavens great light
Guild not the day, what is the day, but night?
The drowzy shepherd sleeps; flowrs droop and fade;
The birds are sullen, and the beasts is sad:
But if bright Titan dart his golden ray,
And, with his riches, glorifie the day,
The jolly shepherd pipes; flowrs freshly spring;
The beasts grown gamesome, and the birds they sing,
Thou art my Sun, great God: O when shall I
View the full beams of thy Meridian eye?
Draw, draw this fleshly courtain, that denies
The gracious presence of thy glorious eyes;
Or give me faith; and by the eye of grace,
I shall behold thee, though not face to face.

S. AUGUST. in. Pſal. 39.

Who created all things is better than all things ; who beautified all things is more beautiful than all things : Who made strength is stronger than all things : Who made great things is greater than all things : Whatsoever thou loveſt, be it that to thee : Learn to love the workman in his work, the Creatour in his creature : Let not that which was made by him poſſeſs thee, leſt thou loſe him by whom thyſelf was made.

S. AUGUST. Med. cap. 37.

My soul earth's prentice, with no clause to leave her?
No day of freedom: must I ever grind;
O that I had the pinions of a Dove,
That I might quit my bands and sore above,
And pour my just complaints before the great Jehove!

How happy are the Doves, that have the pow'r
When e're they please, to spread their airy wings!
Or cloud-dividing Eagles, that can towre
Above the scent of these inferiour things!
How happy is the Lark, that ev'ry hour

How I would spring from earth, and clip away!

 And loath the dainties of earth's painful pleasure ?
 O how I'de laugh to see men night and day
 Turmoil, to gain that trash, they call their treasure !
 O how I'de smile to see what plots they lay
 To catch a blast, or own a smile from Cæsar !
 Had I the pinions of a mounting Dove,
 How I would soar and sing, and hate the love
 Of transitory toys, and feed on joys above !

There should I find that everlasting pleasure, (not ;
 Which change removes not, and which chance prevents
 There should I find that everlasting treasure,
 Which force deprives not, fortune disaugments not ;
 There should I find that everlasting Cæsar,
 Whose hand recalls not, and whose heart repents not ;
 Had I the pinions of a clipping Dove,
 How I would climb the skies, and hate the love
 Of transitory toys, and joy in things above !

No rank mouth'd slander there shall give offence,
 Or blast our blooming names, as here they do ;
 No liver-scalding lust shall there incense
 Our boiling veins. There is no Cupid's bow ;
 Lord, give my soul the milk-white innocence
 Of Doves, and I shall have their pinions too :
 Had I the pinions of a sprightly Dove,
 How I would quit this earth, and soar above
 And Heav'n's blest kingdom find, with Heav'n's blest King

What wings should I desire, but the two precepts of love, on which the Law, and the Prophets depend! O if I could obtain these wings, I could fly from thy face to thy face, from the face of thy Justice to the face of thy Mercy: Let us find those wings by love, which we have lost by lust.

S. AUGUST. in Psal. 76.

Let us cast off whatsoever kindereib, entangleth, or burdeneth our flight, until we attain that which satisfieth; beyond which, nothing is; beneath which, all things are; of which all things are:

EPI G. 13.

ANtient of days to whom all times are Now;
Before whose Glory Seraphims do bow
Their blushing cheeks, and veil their blemish'd faces,
That, uncontain'd, at once doth fill all places;
How glorious, O how far beyond the height
Of puz'led quils, or the obtuse conceit
Of flesh and blood, or the too flat reports
Of mortal tongues are thy expresse courts!
Whose glory to paint forth with greater Art,
Ravish my fancy, and inspire my heart;
Excuse my bold attempt, and pardon me
For shewing sense, what Faith alone should see.
Ten thousand millions, and ten thousand more
Of Angel-measured leagues, from th' Eastern shore
Of dungeon-earth his glorious Palace stands,
Before whose pearly gates ten thousand bands
Of armed Angles wait to entertain
Those purged souls, for which the Lamb was slain;
Whose guiltless death and voluntary yielding
Of whose given life, gave the brave court her building;
The luke warm blood of this dear Lamb being spilt;
To rubies turn'd whereof her posts were built;
And what dropp'd down in a kind gelid gore,
Did turn rich Saphyres, and did pave her floor:

The brighter flames, that from his eye-balls ray'd,
Grew Chrysolites, whereof her walls were made:
The milder glances sparkled on the ground,
And groundfild every door with Diamond;
But dying, darted upwards, and did fix
A battlement of purest Sardonix.
Her streets with burnish'd gold are paved round,
Stars lye like pebbles scatt'ed on the ground:
Pearl mixt with Onyx, and the Jasper stone,
Made gravell'd cause-ways to be trampled on.
There shines no Sun by day, no Moon by night,
The Palace glory is the Palace light:
There is no time to measure motion by,
Their Time is swallow'd with Eternity:
Wry-mouth'd Disdain, and corner hunting Lust,
And twy fac'd Fraud, and beetle-brow'd Distrust
Soul-boyling Rage, and trouble state Sedition,
And giddy Doubt, and goggle-ey'd Suspition,
And lumpish Sorrow, and degen'rous Fear
Are banish'd thence, and Death's a stranger there:
But simple Love, and sempiternal Joys
Whose sweetness neither gluts nor fulness cloy;
Where face to face our ravish'd eye shall see
Great E L O H I M, that glorious One in Three,
And Three in One, and seeing him shall blest him,
And blessing, love him, and in love possess him,
Here stay my soul and ravish in relation:
The words being spent, spend now in contemplation.

S. G R E G. in Psal. 7. pœnitent.

Sweet Jesus, the Word of the Father, the brightness of paternal glory, whom Angels delight to view, teach me to do thy will; that led by thy good Spirit, I may come to that blessed City, where day is eternal, where there is certain security, and secure eternity, and eternal peace, and peaceful happiness, and happy sweetness, and sweet pleasure; where thou, O God, with the Father and the holy Spirit livest and reignest world without end.

GO, gentle tyrant, go; thy flames do pierce;
My ſoul too deep; thy flames are too too fierce;
My marrow melts, my fainting ſpirits fry
I' th' torrid Zone of thy Meridian eye:
Away, away, thy ſweets are too perfuming;
Turn, turn thy face, thy fires are too conſuming:
Haſt hence, and let thy winged ſteps out-go
The frightened Ro-buck, and this flying Roe.
But wilt thou leave me then? O thou that art
Life of my ſoul, ſoul of my dying heart,
Without the ſweet aſpect of whoſe fair eyes?
My ſoul doth languish, and her ſolace dies,
Art thou ſo eaſily woo'd? ſo apt to hear
The frantick language of my fooliſh fear?
Leave, leave me not, nor turn thy beauty from me;
Look, look upon me, though thine eyes o'recome me.
O how they wound! But how my wounds content me!
How ſweetly theſe delightful pains torment me!
How I am tortur'd in exceſſive meaſure
Of pleaſing cruelties too cruel meaſure!
Turn, turn away, remove thy ſcorching beams;
I languish with theſe bitter-ſweet extreams:

Haste then, and let thy winged steps out-go
The flying Ro-buck, and his frighted Ro.
Turn back, my dear ; O let my ravish'd eye
Once more behold thy face before thou fly ;
What shall we part without a mutual kiss ?
O who can leave so sweet a face as this ?
Look full upon me ; for my soul desires
To turn a holy Martyr in those fires :

O leave me not, nor turn thy beauty from me ;
Look, look upon me, though thy flames ov'rcome me.
If thou becloud the Sun-shine of thy eye,
I freeze to death, and if it shine, I fry ;
Which like a feaver, that my soul hath got,
Makes me to burn too cold, or freeze too hot :
Alas, I cannot bear so sweet a smart,
Nor canst thou be less glorious, than thou art.

Haste then, and let thy winged steps out-go
The frighted Ro-buck, and this flying Ro,
But go not far beyond the reach of breath ;
Too large a distance makes another death :
My youth is in her spring ; Autumnal vows
Will make me riper for so sweet a Spouse ;
When after-times have burnish'd my desire,
I'll shoot thee flames for flames, and fire for fire.

O leave me not, nor turn thy beauty from me ;
Look, look upon me, though thy flames ov'rcome me.

The FAREWELL.

REV. 2. 10.

Be thou faithful unto Death, and I will give thee the Crown of Life.

BE faithful, Lord, what's that ?
 Believe : 'tis easie to believe ; but what ?
 That he whom thy hard heart hath wounded,
 And whom thy scorn hath spit upon,
 Hath paid thy fine, and hath compounded
 For these fouls deeds thy hands have done ;
 Believe, that he whose gentle palms
 Thy needle pointed fins have nail'd,
 Hath born thy slavish load (of alms)
 And made supply where thou hast fail'd,
 Did ever mis'ry find so strange relief ?
 It is a love too strange for mans belief.

Believe that he whose side
 Thy crimes have pierc'd with their rebellions, dy'd,
 To save thy guilty soul from dying
 Ten thousand horrid deaths, from whence
 There was no scape, there was no flying,
 But through his dearest bloods expence :
 Believe, this dying friend requires
 No other thanks for all his pain,
 But ev'n the truth of weak desires,
 And for his love, but love again :
 Did ever mis'ry find so true a friend ?
 It is a love too vast to comprehend.

With

With floods of tears baptize
 And drench these dry, these unregen'rate eyes;
 Lord, whet my dull my blunt belief,
 And break this fleshly rock in sunder,
 That from this heart, this hell of grief,
 May spring a Heav'n of love and wonder:
 O if thy mercies will remove
 And melt this lead from my belief,
 My grief will then refine my love,
 My love will then refresh my grief,
 Then weep mine eyes as he hath bled; vouchsafe
 To drop for every drop an Epitaph.

But is the crown of Glory
 The wages of a lamentable story?
 Or can so great a purchase rise
 From a salt humour? Can mine eye
 Run fast enough t' obtain this prize?
 If so, Lord, who's so mad to die?
 Thy tears are trifles; thou must do:
 Alas I cannot then endeavour:
 I will! But will a tug or two
 Suffice the turn? Thou must persevere:
 I'll strive till death; and shall my feeble strife
 Be crown'd? I'll crown it with a crown of life.

But is there such a dearth
 That thou must buy, what is thy due by birth?
 He whom thy hands did form of dust
 And give him breath upon condition;
 To love his great Creatour, must
 He now be thine by composition?
 Art thou a gracious God and mild,
 Or head-strong man rebellious rather?
 O, man's a base rebellious child,
 And thou a very gracious Father:
 The gift is thine; we strive, thou crown'st our strife;
 Thou giv'st us Faith: and Faith, a crown of life.

PSALM. I. 5.

*Behold I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin
did my Mother conceive me.*

MAN is man's A. B. C. There is none that can Read God aright, unless he first speell Man:
Man is the stairs, whereby his knowledge climbs,
To his Creatour though it oftentimes
Stumbles for want of light, and sometimes trips
For want of careful heed; and sometimes slips
Through unadvised haste; and then at length
His weary steps have reach'd the top, his strength
Oft falls to stand; his giddy brains turn round;
And Phaeton-like, falls headlong to the ground:
These stairs are often dark, and full of danger
To him, whom want of practice makes a stranger;
To this blind way: the Lamps of nature lends
But a false light, and lights to her own ends.
These be the ways to Heaven, these paths require
A light that springs from that Diviner fire,
Whose human soul-enlightning Sun-beams dart
Through the bright crannies of th'immortal part.
And here thou great Original of Light,
Whose errour-chasing beams do unbenight
The very soul of darkness, and untwist
The clouds of ignorance, do thou assist
My feeble quill; reflect thy sacred rays
Upon these lines, that they may light the ways
That lead to thee; so guide my heart, my hand,
That I may do what others understand.
Let my heart practice what my hand shall write;
Till then, I am a Tapor wanting light.

This golden Precept, Know thy self, come down
From Heavn's high Court : It was an Art unknown
To flesh and blood. The men of Nature took Great journies in it : Their dim eyes did look
But through the mist, like Pilgrims they did spend
Their idle steps, but know no journies end.
The way to know thy self, is first to cast
Thy frail beginning, Progress, and thy last :
This is the sum of Man ; But now return
And view this Tapour standing in this Urn.
Behold her substance sordid and impure,
Useless and vain, and (wanting light) obscure :
'Tis but a span at longest, nor can last
Beyond that span ; ordain'd and made to waft :
Ev'n such was Man (before his soul gave light
To this vile substance) a meer child of night ;
Ere he had life, estated in his Urn,
And markt for death ; by nature, born to burn :
Thus liveless, lightless, worthless first began
That glorious, that presumptuous thing call'd Man.

S. AUGUST.

Consider, O man, what thou wert before thy birth, and what thou art from thy birth to thy death, and what thou shalt be after death : Thou wert made of an impure substance, clothed and nourished in thy mothers blood.

E P I G. I.

Forbear, fond Tapour : What thou seek'st, is fire :
Thy own destruction's lodg'd in thy desire.
Thy wants are far more safe then their supply :
He that begins to live, begins to die.

G E N. 2. 3.

And God said, Let there be Light; and there was Light.

I

THis flame expecting Tapour hath at length
 Received fire, and now begins to burn:
 It hath no vigour yet, it hath no strength;
 Apt to be pult and quencht at every turn:
 It was a gracious hand that thus endow'd
 This snuff with flame: But mark this hand doth shroud
 It self from mortal eyes, and fold it in a cloud.

Thus man begins to live. An unknown flame
 Quickens his finisht Organs, now posselt
 With motion; and which motion doth proclaim
 An active soul, though in a feeble breast:
 But how, and when infus'd ask not my pen;
 Here flies a cloud before the eyes of men:
 I cannot tell thee how, nor canst thou tell me when.

Was it a parcel of Celestial fire
 Infus'd by Heav'n into this fleshly mould:
 Or was it (think you) made a soul entire?
 Then, Was it new created? Or of old?
 Or is't a propagated Spark, rak'd out
 From Natures embers? While we go about,
 By reason to resolve, the more we raise a doubt.

If it be part of that celestial Flame,
 It must be ev'n as pure, as free from spot
 As that eternal Fountain whence it came :
 If pure and spotless, then whence came the blot
 It self being pure could not it self defile ;
 Nor hath unactive matter pow'r to soil
 Her pure and active form, as Jars corrupt their Oyl.

Or if it were created, tell me when ?
 If in the first six days, where kept till now ?
 Or if thy soul were new created, then
 Heav'n did not at all, at first, he had to do :
 Six days, expired all creation ceast
 All kinds, ev'n from the greatest to the least,
 Were finisht and compleat before the day of rest.

But why should Man, the Lord of Creatures, want
 That priviledge which Plants and Beasts obtain ?
 Beasts bring forth Beasts, the Plant a perfect Plant ;
 And ev'ry like bring forth her like again :
 Shall Fowls and Fishes, Beasts and Plants convey Life to their issue, and Man less than they ?
 Shall these get living souls ? And Man dead lumps of clay ?

Must human souls be generated then ;
 My water ebs ; behold, a Rock is nigh :
 If Natures work produce the souls of men,
 Mans soul is mortal : All that's born must die.
 What shall we then conclude ? What sun-shine will Disperse with gloomy cloud ? Till then, be still,
 My vainly striving thoughts ; lie down, my puzzled quill.

 But it is straight subjected to the threat
 Of envious winds, whose wastful rage
 Disturbs her peaceful light,
 And makes her substance walt, and makes her flames less

No sooner are we born, no sooner come
 To take possession of this vast,
 This soul afflicting earth,
 But danger meets us at the very womb;
 And sorrow with her full mouth'd blast
 Salutes our painful birth,
 To put out all our joys, and puff out all our mirth!

Nor infant innocence, nor childish tears,
 Nor youthful wit, nor manly power,
 Nor politick old age,
 Nor virgins pleading, nor the widows prayers;
 Nor lowly cell, nor lofty tower,
 Nor Prince, nor Peer, nor Page
 Can scape this common blast, or curb her stormy rage.

Our life is but a pilgrimage of blasts;
 And every blast brings forth a fear;
 And every fear, a death;
 The more it lengthens, ah, the more it wastes:
 Were, were we to continue here
 The days of long liv'd Seib,
 Our sorrows would renew, as we renew our breath:

Toft too and fro, our frighted thoughts are driv'n
 With every puff, with every tide
 Of life-consuming care;
 Our peaceful flame, that would point up to Heav'n
 Is still disturb'd, and turn'd aside;
 And every blast of air
 Commits such waste in man as man cannot repair.

W' are all born debtors, and we firmly stand
 Oblig'd for our first parents debt,
 Besides our int'aerest;
 Alas; we have no harmless counter-band,
 And we are every hour beset,
 With threatnings of arrest,
 And till we pay the debt, we can expect no rest.

What may this sorrow-shaken life present
 To the false relish of our taste
 That's worth the name of sweet?
 Her minutes pleasur's choak't with discontent,
 Her glory foil'd with every blast;
 How many dangers meet,
 Poor man betwixt the biggin and the winding sheet.

Always pruning, always cropping?
 Is her brightness still obscur'd?
 Ever dressing, ever topping?
 Always curing, never cur'd?
 Too much snuffing makes a waste;
 When the spirits spend too fast,
 They will shrink at ev'ry blast.

You that always are bestowing
 Costly pains in life repairing,
 Are but always overthrowing
 Natures work by overcaring:
 Nature meeting with her so,
 In a work she hath to do,
 Takes a pride to over-throw.

Nature knows her own perfection,
 And her pride disdains a tutor,
 Cannot stoop to Arts correction,
 And she scorns a co-adjutor.
 Saucy Art should not appear
 Till she whisper in her ear:
Hagar flees, if Sara bear.

Nature worketh for the better,
 If not hindered that she cannot;
 Art stands by as her abetter,
 Ending nothing she began not;
 If distemper chance to seize
 Nature foil'd with the disease,
 Art may help her if she please.

But to make a trade of trying
Druggs and doses always pruning;

He's untun'd, that's always tuning.
He that often loves to lack
Dear-bought drugs hath found a knack
To foyl the man, and feed the Quack.

O the sad, the frail condition
Of the pride of Natures glory !
How infirm his composition,
And at best how transitory !
When this riot doth impair
Natures weakness, then his care
Adds more ruin by repair.

Hold thy hand, healths dear maintainer,
Life perchance may burn the stronger:
Having substance to sustain her,
She untouch'd, may last the longer :
When the Artift goes about,
To redress her flame, I doubt,
Oftentimes he snuffs it out.

PSALM. 11. 91.

And he will give his Angels charge over thee.

O How mine eyes could please themselves, and spend
 Perpetual ages in this precious sight !
 How I could woe Eternity, to lend
 My wasting day an antidote for night
 And how my flesh could with my flesh contend,
 That views this object with no more delight !
 My work is great, my Tapour spends too fast :
 'Tis all I have, and soon would out or wast
 Did not this blessed screen protect it from this blast.

O, I have lost the jewel of my soul,
 And I must find it out, or I must die ?
 Alas ! My sin-made darknes doth controul
 The bright endeavour of my careful eye :
 I must go search and ransack every hole ;
 Nor have I other light to to seek it by :
 O if this light be spent, my work not done ;
 My labour's worse then lost ; my jewel's gone,
 And I am quite forlorn, and I am quite undone.

You blessed Angels, you that do enjoy
 The full fruition of eternal glory,
 Will you be pleas'd to fancy such a toy
 As man, and quit your glorious territory ;
 And stoop to earth, vouchsafing to employ
 Your care to guard the dust that lies before ye ?
 Disdain you not these lumps of dying clay,
 That for your pains, do oftentimes repay
 Neglect, if not disdain, and send you griev'd away ?

This vapour of our lives, that once was plac'd
 In the fair suburbs of Eternity,
 Is now alas confin'd to ev'ry blast,
 And turn'd a Maypole for the sporting Fly ;
 And will you, sacred Spirits, please to cast
 Your care on us, and lend a gracious eye ?
 How had this slender inch of Tapour been Blasted and blaz'd, had not this heavenly Screen
 Curb'd the proud blast, and timely stept between !

ECCLESIASTES 3. 1.

To every thing there is an appointed time.

I

Time

Death;

Time.

BEhold the frailty of this slender stuff
 Alas, it hath not long to last:
 Without the help of either thief or puff,
 Her weakness knows the way to waft:
 Nature hath made her substance apt enough
 To spend it self, and spend too fast:
 It needs the help of none
 That is so prone
 To lavish out untouch'd, and languish all alone.

Death. Time, hold thy peace, and shake thy slow pac'd sand:
 Thy idle minutes make no way:
 Thy glass exceeds her how'r, or else doth stand,
 I cannot hold, I cannot stay.
 Surcease thy pleading, and enlarge my hand
 I surfeit with too long delay:
 This brisk, this bold-fac'd light
 Doth burn too bright;
 Darkness adorns my throne, my day is darkest night.

Time. Great Prince of darkness, hold thy needless hand:
 Thy captiv's fast and cannot flee:
 What arm can rescue? Who can countermand?
 What pow'r can set thy pris'ner free?
 Or if they could, what close, what foreign land
 Can hide that head that flees from thee?
 But if her harmless light
 Offend thy sight, (at night?)
 What need'st thou snatch at noon, what will be thine

Death. I have out staid my patience ; my quick trade
 Grows dull and makes too slow return :

*His light shall be dark ; and his candle shall

¹
What ails our tapour ? Is her lustre fled,
Or foyl'd ? What dire disaster bred
This change, that thus she vails her golden head ?

²
It was but very now she shin'd as fair
As Venus star. Her glory might compare
With Cynthia, burnisht with her brothers hair.

³
There was no cave-begotten damp that mought
Abuse her beams ; no wind that went about
To break her peace ; no puff to put her out.

⁴
Lift up thy wond'ring thoughts, and thou shalt spie
A cause, will clear thy doubts, but cloud thine eye :
Subjects must vail, when as their Sov'reign's by.

⁵
Canst thou behold bright Phæbus, and thy sight
No whit impair'd ? The object is too bright ;
The weaker yields unto the stronger light.

⁶
Great God, I am thy tapour, thou my sun ;
From thee, the Spring of light, my light begun ;
Yet if thy light but shine, my light is done.

⁷
If thou withdraw thy light, my light will shine,
If thine appear, how poor a light is mine ?
My light is darkness if compar'd to thine.

8

Thy Sun beams are too strong for my weak eye ;
 If thou but shine, how nothing, Lord, am I !
 Ah, who can see thy visage, and not die !

If intervening earth should make a night,
 My wanton flame would then shine forth too bright ;
 My earth would even presume t' eclipse thy light.

10

And if thy light be shadow'd, and mine fade,
 If thine be dark, and my dark light decay'd,
 I should be cloathed with a double shade.

11

What shall I do ? O what shall I desire ?
 What help can my distracted thoughts require,
 That thus am wasted twixt a double fire ?

12

In what a strait, in what a strait am I ?
 'Tiwixt two extreams how my rackt fortunes lie ?
 See I thy face, or see it not, I die.

13

O let the steam of my Redeemers blood,
 That breaths from my sick soul, be made a cloud ;
 To interpose these lights, and be my shroud.

14

Lord, what am I ? Or what's the light I have ?
 May it but light my ashes to their grave,
 And so from thence, to thee ; 'tis all I crave.

15

O make my light, that all the world may see
 Thy glory by 't : If not, It seems to me
 Honour enough, to be put out by thee.

O light inaccessible, in respect of which my light is utter darkness; so reflect upon my weakness, that all the world may behold thy strength: O Majestic incomprehensible, in respect of which my glory is mere shame: so shine upon my misery that all the world may behold thy glory.

EPIG. 7.

Wilt thou complain, because thou art bereav'n
Of all thy light? Wilt thou vie lights with Heav'n?
Can thy bright eye not brook the daily light?
Take heed: I fear thou art a child of night.

MATTHEW 5. 16.

Let your light so shine, that men seeing your good works may glorifie your Father which is in Heaven.

WAs it for this, the breath of Heaven was blown
 Into the nostrils of this Heavenly creature?
 Was it for this, that sacred Three in One
 Conspir'd to make this quintessence of Nature?
 Did Heavenly providence intend
 So rare a fabrick for so poor an end?

Was Man, the highest master-piece of Nature,
 The curious abstract of the whole creation,
 Whose soul was copied from his great Creator,
 Made to give light, and set for observation,
 Ordain'd for this? To spend his light
 In a dark-lanthorn cloystred up in night?

Tell me, recluse Monastick, can it be
 A disadvantage to thy beams to shine?
 A thousand tapours may gain light from thee:
 Is thy light less or worse for lighting mine?
 If wanting light, I stumble, shall
 Thy darkness not be guilty of my fall?

Why dost thou lurk so close? Is it for fear
 Some busie eye should pry into thy flame,
 And spie a thief, or else some blemish there?
 Or being spi'd, shrink'it thou thy head for shame?
 Come, come fond tapour, shine but clear,
 Thou needst not shrink for shame, nor shroud for fear.

Z

Remember

Remember, O remember, thou wert set
 For men to see the great Creatour by;
 Thy flame is not thy own : It is a debt
 Thou own'st thy Master. And wilt thou deny
 To pay the int'rest of thy light ?
 And skulk in corners, and play least in fight ?

Art thou afraid to trust thy easie flame
 To the injurious wast of Fortunes puff ?
 Ah, coward, rouze, and quit thy self for shame :
 Who dies in service, hath liv'd long enough :
 Who shines, and makes no eye partaker,
 Usurps himself, and closely robs his Maker.

Make not thy self a Pris'ner, that art free :
 Why dost thou turn thy Palace to a jail ?
 Thou art an Eagle : And befits it thee
 To live immured like a cloyster'd snail ?
 Let toys seek corners ; things of cost
 Gain worth by view : Hid jewels are but lost.

8

My God, my light is dark enough at lightest,
 Encrease her flame, and give her strength to shine :
 'Tis frail at best : 'Tis dim enough at brightest,
 But 'tis her glory to be soyld by thine,
 Let others lurk : My light shall be
 Propos'd to all men ; and by them to thee.

Behold

How short a span
Was long enough, of old
To measure out the life of man!
In those well temper'd days his time was then
Survey'd, cast up, and found but threescore years and ten.

Alas

And what is that?
They come, and slide, and pass,
Before my pen can tell thee what.
The posts of time are swift, which having run
Their sev'n short stages 'ore, their short-live task is done.

Our days

Begun we lend
To sleep, to antick plays
And toys, until the first stage end:
12. waning moons, twice 5. times told, we give
To unrecover'd loss: We rather breath than live:

4
We spend

A ten years breath
Before we apprehend
What 'tis to live or fear a death?
Our childish dreams are fill'd with pianted joys,
Which please our sense a while, and waking, prove but toys.

How vain,

How wretched is

Poor man, that doth remain

A slave to such a State as this!

His days are short, at longest; few, at most;

They are but bad, at best; yet lavisht out, or lost.

They be

The secret springs

That make our minutes flee

On wheels more swift then Eagles wings:

Our life's a Clock, and every gasp of Breath

Breaths forth a warning grief, till Time shall strike a death.

How soon

Our new-born light

Attains to full ag'd noon!

And this, how soon to gray-hair'd night!

We spring, we bud, we blossom, and we blast

E'r we can count our days, our days they flee so fast!

8

They end

When scarce begun;

And e're we apprehend

That we begin to live, our life is done:

Man, count thy days; and if they flie too fast

For thy dull thoughts to count, count every day the last.

Our infancy is consumed in eating and sleeping ; in all which time what differ we from beasts, but by a possibility of reason, and a necessity of sin ?

HOW flux ! How alterable is the date
Of transitory things !

How hurry'd on the clipping wings

How one condition brings
The leading Prologue to another state !

No transitory things can last ?
Change waits on Time, and Time is wing'd with hast ;
Time present's but the ruin of Time past.

Behold how Change hath inch'd away thy Span ;

And how thy light doth burn

Nearer and nearer to thy Urn :

For this dear wast what satisfaction can

Injurious Time return

Thy shortned days, but this, the style of Man ?

And what's a man ? A cask of care,

Now tun'd and working ; he's a middle stair

'Twixt birth and death ; a blast of full-ag'd air.

SEN.

Expect great joy when thou shalt lay down the mind of a child, and deserve the style of a wise man; for at those years childhood is past, but oftentimes childishness remaineth, and what is worse, thou hast the authority of a man, but the voice of a child.

EPIG. II.

To the declining man.

Why stand'st thou discontented? Is not he
 As equal distant from the top as thee?
 What then may cause thy discontented frown?
 He's mounting up the hill; thou plodding down.

Vt Sol ardore virili.

DEUTERONOMIE. 33. 25.

As the days, so shall thy strength be.

The Post
Of swift-foot Time
Hath now at length begun
The Kalends of our middle stage:
The number'd steps that we have gone, do show
The number of those steps we are to go:
The buds and blossoms of our age
Are blown, decay'd, and gone
And all our prime
Is lost;
And what we boast too much, we have least cause to boast.

Ah me!
There is no rest;
Our Time is always fleeing.
What rein can curb our head-strong hours;
They pass away: They pass we know not how:
Our Now is gone, before we can say Now:
Time past and future's none of ours:
That hath as yet no being;
And this hath ceas'd
To be:
What is, is only ours: How short a Time have we!

And now
Apollo's ear.

Expects harmonious strains,
 New minted from the Thracian Lyre;
 For now the virtue of the two-fork'd Hill
 Inspires the ravish'd fancy, and doth fill
 The vines with Pegasean fire:

And now those sterile brains
 That cannot show,
 Nor bear
 Some fruits, shall never wear Apollo's sacred Bow.

Excess
 And surfeit uses
 To wait upon these days;
 Full seed and flowing cups of wine
 Conjure the fancy, forcing up a spirit
 By the case Magick of debauch'd delight;
 Ah pity, twice-born Bacchus Vine
 Should starve Apollo's Bayes,
 And drown those Muses

That bless
 And calm the peaceful soul, when storms of cares oppress.

Strong light
 Boast not those beams
 That can but only raise
 And blaze a while, and then away:
 There is no Solstice in thy day;
 The midnight glory lies
 Betwixt th' extremes
 Of night,

A glory foil'd with shame, and fool'd with false delight.

Hast thou climbed up to the full age of thy few days ? Look backwards and thou shalt see the frailty of thy youth ; the folly of thy childhood, and the waste of thy Infancy : Look forwards ; thou shalt see the cares of the World, the troubles of thy mind, the diseases of thy body.

EPIG. 12.

To the middle-aged.

Thou that art prancing on the lusty Noon
Of thy full age, boast not thy self too soon ;
Convert that breath to wail thy fickle state ;
Take heed thou'lt brag too soon, or boast too late.

JOHN. 3. 30.

He must encrease, but I must decrease.

Time voids the table, dinner's done ;
And now our days declining Sun
Hath hurried his diurnal load
To th' borders of the Western road ;
Fierce Pblegon, with his fellow steeds,
Now puffs and pants, and blows and bleeds,
And froths and fumes, remembering still
Their lashes up th' Olympick hill,
Which having conquer'd, now disdain;
The whip, and champ the frothy rein,
And with a full carter they bend
Their paces to their journeys end :
Our blazing Tapour now hath lost
Her better half, Nature hath crost
Her forenoon book, and clear'd that score,
But scarce gives trust for so much more :
And now the generous sap forsakes
Her seir-grown twig : A breath ev'n shakes
The down ripe fruit : fruit soon divorc'd
From her dear branch, untouch'd, unforc'd.
Now Sanguin Venus doth begin
To draw her wanton colours in,
And flees neglected in disgrace,
Whil'st Mars supplies her luke warm place ;
Blood turn to choler : What this age
Loses in strength it finds in rage :
That rich ennamel, which of old,
Damask'd the downy cheek, and told,

A harmless guilt, unask'd, is new
Worn off from the audacious brow ;
Luxurious dalliance, midnight revels,
Loose riot, and those venial evils
Which inconsiderate youth of late
Could plead, now want an Advocate :
And what appear'd in former times
Whisp'ring as faults, now roar as crimes ;
And now all ye whose lips were wont
To drench their Coral in the font
Of fork'd Parnassus ; you that be
The sons of Phæbus, and can flee
On wings of fancy to display
The flagg of high invention, stay,
Repose your quills ; your veins grow sower,
Tempt not your Salt beyond her power :
If your pall'd fancies but decline,
Censure will strike at every line
And wound your names, the popular ear
Weighs what you are, not what you were,
Thus hackney like, we tire our age,
Spur-gall'd with change from stage to stage.

Seest thou the daily light of the greater World? When attended to the highest pitch of Meridian glory, it stayeth not, but by the same degrees, it ascended, it descendeth. And is the light of the lesser world more permanent? Continuance is the child of Eternity, not of Time.

EPIG. 13.

To the young man.

Young man, rejoyce ; and let thy rising days
Cheer thy glad heart : Think'st thou these uphill ways
Lead to death's dungeon? No, but know withal,
A rising is but a Prologue to a fall.

Invidiosa Senectus. 374

JOHN. 12. 35.

Yet a little while is the light with you.

THe day grows old, the low-pitch lamp hath made
 No less than treble shade,
 And the descending damp doth now prepare
 T' uncurl bright Tizans hair;
 Whose Western wardrobe now begins t' unfold
 Her purples, fring'd with gold,
 To cloath his evening glory, when th' alarms
 Of rest shall call to rest in restless Tbetis arms.

Nature now calls to supper, to refresh
 The spirits of all flesh;
 The toyling plowman drives his thirsty teams,
 To taste the slipp'ry streams:
 The droyling swine-herd knocks away, and feasts
 His hungry whining guests:
 The boxbil Ouzle, and the dapled Thrush
 Like hungry rivals meet at their beloved bush.

And now the cold Autumnal dews are seen
 To cobweb every green;
 And by the low-thorn Rowins doth appear
 The fast-declining year:
 The sapless branches doff their summer suits
 And wain their winter fruits;
 And stormy blasts have forc'd the quaking trees
 To wrap her trembling limbs in suits of mossy freez.

Our

Our wasted Tapour now hath brought her light
 To the next door to night ;
 Her sprightless flames grown with great snuff, doth turn
 Sad as her neighb'ring Urn:
 Her slender inch, that yet unspent remains,
 Lights but to further pains,
 And in a silent language bids her guest
 Prepare his weary limbs to take Eternal rest.

Now careful age hath pitch'd her painful plough
 Upon the furrow'd brow ;
 And snowy blasts of discontented care
 Have blanch'd the falling hair :
 Suspicious envy mixt with jealous spight
 Disturb's his weary night :
 He threatens youth with age ; and now alas,
 He owns not what he is, but vaunts the man he was,

Gray hairs, pursue thy days, and let thy past
 Read Lectures to thy last :
 Those hasty wings that hurri'd them away
 Will give these days no day :
 The constant wheels of Nature scorn to tire
 Until her works expire :
 That blast that nipt thy youth, will ruin thee ; tree.
 That hand that shook the branch will quickly strike the

Gray hairs are honourable, when the behaviour suits with gray hairs: But when an antient man hath childish manners, he becometh more ridiculous than a child.

Thou art in vain attained to old years, that repeatest thy youthfulness.

EPI G. 14.

To the Youth.

Seest thou this good old man? he represents
Thy Future, thou, his Preterperfect tense:
Thou goest to labour, he prepares to rest:
Thou break'st thy fast, he supps; now which is best?

P S A L M 90. 10.

The days of our years are threescore years and ten.

SO have I seen th' illustrious Prince of Light
Rising in glory from his Crocean bed,
And trampling down the horrid shades of night,
Advancing more and more his conqu'ring head,
Pause first, decline, at length begin to shroud
His fainting brows within a coal-black cloud.

So have I seen a well-built Castle stand
Upon the tip-toss of a lofty hill,
Whose active pow'r commands both sea and land,
And curbs the pride of the beleag'ers will :
At length her ag'd foundation fails her trust,
And lays her tott'ring ruins in the dust.

So have I seen the blazing Tapour shoot
Her golden head into the feeble air,
Whose shadow-gilding ray spread round about,
Makes the foul face of black-brow'd darkness fair ;
Till at the length her waisting glory fades,
And leaves the night to her invet'rate shades.

Ev'n so this little world of living Clay,
The pride of Nature, glorified by Art,
Whom Earth adores, and all her Hofts obey,
Ally'd to Heav'n by his Diviner part.
Triumphs a while, then droops, and then decays,
And worn by age, death cancels all his days.

That

That glorious Sun, that whilom shone so bright,
Is now ev'n ravish'd from our darkned eyes :

That sturdy Castle, mann'd with so much might;
Lies now a Mon'ment of her own disguise :

That blazing Tapour, that disdain'd the puff
Of troubled Air, scarce owns the name of snuff

Poor bed-rid Man ! Where is that glory now,

Thy Youth so vaunted ? Where that Majesty

Which set enthron'd upon thy manly brow ?

Where, where that braving arm ? That daring eye ?

Those bux om tunes ? Those Bacchanalian tones ;

Those swelling veins ? Those marrow flaming bones ?

Thy drooping glory's blurr'd, and prostrate lies

Grov'ling in dust ; and frightful horror, now,

Sharpens the glaunces of thy gashful eyes ?

Whilst fear perplexes thy distracted brow :

The panting breast vents all her breath by groans,

And death enerves thy marrow-wasted bones.

8

Thus Man that's born of woman can remain

But a short time : His days are all full of sorrow ;

His life's a penance and his death's a pain.

Springs like a flow'r to day, and fades to morrow ;

His breath's a bubble, and his day's a span :

'Tis glorious misery to be born a Man.

EPIG. 15.

To the infant.

What he doth spend in groans, thou spend'st in tears;
Judgment and strength's alike in both your years;
He's helpless; so art thou; what difference then?
He's an old Infant; thou, a young old Man.
